

YOUNGEST U. S. SENATOR EVER SENT FROM OHIO

Gen. Charles Dick Will Bear That Distinction
When Elected Hanna's Successor.

THE PARTY ORGANIZATION IS STRENGTHENED

Columbus, Feb. 22.—(Special)—The unanimity with which General Charles Dick will be chosen as the nominee of the Republican legislative caucus to be held the latter part of this week, is a gratifying evidence of harmonious leadership in the Republican party of Ohio, as well as a remarkable tribute of esteem for a public man who, though a veteran in service, has not completed his 45th year.

Charles Dick will in all probability be the youngest man who has ever won the senatorship toga from Ohio. Certainly he is the youngest within a generation. Yet he has been in the front rank of working Republicans for a decade.

In 1893 he managed his first state campaign. With the exception of three years, he has conducted every campaign in Ohio since. And the majorities of his party have steadily grown in magnitude during the period. He had wise counsel and fatherly direction and co-operation. He has enjoyed a rare companionship and in it he grew steadily in the regard of the party in his native state.

Like a host of prominent Americans, Charles Dick is not the product of favored conditions. His father was poor. The boy was early forced to shift for himself. Keen, alert, industrious, he made friends and won confidence, until, step by step, he rose from the humble position of office boy and janitor in an Akron bank nearly 35 years ago to the high place he holds today.

When he is chosen next week, as he is certain to be, to the honored post of successor in the United States senate to one of the greatest Americans of our day, the great mass of the people of his native state will believe that he will in due time prove himself worthy and as capable there as he has in every other capacity in which he has been tested before the public.

"There is no office in the gift of the people of the state or of the United States which I would accept if it could be truthfully said I had sacrificed a friend to get it."

These are the words of Myron T. Herrick. Cleveland dispatches carry his statement of Saturday, the statement which ended the senatorship contest and will make General Charles Dick the junior United States senator from Ohio.

The statement here quoted, however, was made before he made and withstood the onslaught of friends who besieged him at Cleveland and urged him to become a candidate for senator. This statement was made in Washington. It was made to a close personal friend. It was made last Tuesday, the day after the death of Hanna.

The statement here quoted, taken in conjunction with the statement that he had a trust to execute, proves indisputably that the governor of Ohio made his decision after communing with his own thoughts and alone. He made it in the solitude of his grief, his fresh, copious, deep grief for his stricken friend, Hanna.

At Cleveland he broke the silence of his mourning and revealed to the public his decision.

In the interim the most powerful leader of a section of the state, George Barnsdale Cox, had offered to support him if he should be a candidate. This did not change his decision. He felt it was his, and he only, who had it in his power to preserve in its integrity the magnificent political organization Hanna had built. This Hanna organization had made him governor. He would not desert it to secure even the high honor of the United States senatorship.

By his decision Myron T. Herrick made himself the idol of the great mass of the Republican party, and especially of the so-called Hanna organization. From the humblest worker in its ranks to the most skilled and able of its leaders, there was not a dissenting voice when the wires brought swiftly the tidings that Herrick would remain governor, and that his firm grasp of the state administration would not be relaxed. The news was expected, but was none the less momentous. It thrilled the Hanna organization through and through. Everyone said, and no one disputed, that now this organization will be for Herrick for anything he may want, however lofty that honor may be.

By self-abnegation and the adherence to the obligation of his great trust, Herrick has won the hearts of the thousands of stalwarts who compose the Hanna organization, and Hanna's judgment in putting Herrick forward for governor has been vindicated in the eyes of the followers of the dead statesman.

At the psychological moment Myron T. Herrick rose to the occasion. The result was so momentous in its bearing on the future of Ohio politics that its immediate and lasting effect was felt in every quarter of the state.

It meant the preservation of the organization. There was shakings of heads when McKinley was laid low by the dastardly crime at Buffalo. But the organization survived. The forebodings were greater and more general when Hanna passed away. But the organization has survived. All men know it. Saturday the advance guard from the Cleveland conferences told all at the Neil house that the organization was cemented more closely than ever.

The next junior United States senator from Ohio will open headquarters at the Neil. He comes as the choice of the whole organization. The Cleveland conferences which have made General Charles Dick the winner, were not dictations of leaders which must be forced down the throats of the members of the legislature. The exact opposite is true. The rank and file of the party workers were for Dick.

Dick would have contested for the place, he told his friends, whatever the conditions and whoever was a candidate. He said: "My district is for me. The people of my district would call me a coward if I should not become a candidate. I will be a candidate if I don't get but two votes."

Dick's friends have no misgivings regarding his career in the senate. In the house he has taken to legislative work like a duck to water. If Speaker Cannon had died instead of Senator Hanna, General Dick might have been speaker. He was in line for it.

He is a man of strong convictions on public questions, a student, with a growing mind and a developing character. Dick has the training and the aptitude which makes for eminence in the United States senate.

General Dick's friends feel that he will not be lost in the senate, but will rise.

WELLSVILLE IN LINE

A Return Match on the Imperial Alleys
Arranged—Tournament Closed.

After much dickering and delay the Imperial team has at last got a return match with Wellsville on the Imperial alleys. Captain Powell completed arrangements with Captain Aten last Friday night for the match. The match will be total pins for the three games. Captain Aten was up Friday night and declared himself delighted with the alleys, saying they were in the best condition he ever saw them and just to prove his statement he turned in and bowled 244. Messrs. McDonald and Williams, successors to Charles Craig, have made several improvements on the alleys since they got them. They are arranging now soon to remodel the entire place and are going to have the alleys planed, making them as good as new.

The second tournament closed Saturday night, more interest being shown than in the former one. Elmo Rose took first prize; Otto Powell second; H. Woods, third, and Earl Brunt Jr. fourth. There will be another in two weeks. The small boys, not to be outdone, are going to have a duck pin tournament next week.

THE SENATORSHIP GOES TO GEN. DICK

Governor Herrick's Declaration Regarded as Settling the Contest.

PHASES OF THE SITUATION

As indicated in the News Review of Saturday, the declaration of Governor Herrick that he will not be a candidate for the United States senate, but will serve out his time as governor, is believed virtually to end the contest to succeed Senator Hanna, and to point to the election of General Charles Dick, of Akron.

The personal opponents of General Dick in the Republican party, the leader of whom is ex-Congressman J. J. Gill, now have absolutely no candidate whom they could support with the hope of defeating Dick, and Mr. Gill's paper, the Columbus Dispatch, virtually concedes General Dick's election, and prints complimentary statements about him.

General Dick's friends are saying, and it is not denied, that he will be the nominee of the caucus without a dissenting vote, and will be elected on joint ballot by exactly the same vote by which Senator Hanna held one month ago.

It is reported that the reason Congressman T. E. Burton has made no fight for the senatorship was due to the fact that he has been directly promised by President Roosevelt that he will be given a place in the cabinet in the event of Roosevelt's re-election.

General Dick has received a telegram from Mrs. Hanna saying: "Mr. Hanna would have wished it, I wish it, and the whole family wish it."

General Dick's candidacy was announced Saturday afternoon by the general himself, when the senators and representatives of the Ohio general assembly from his congressional district called upon him to tender their support and assure him of their votes. General Dick had just returned from Cleveland, where, after the funeral of Senator Hanna, he had been engaged in conference with the powers of the Republican party in Ohio.

He stated that Governor Herrick had assured him of his intention of remaining in the gubernatorial chair and that George B. Cox had also assured him that he was not a candidate.

General Dick expects to be elected unanimously, having been assured voluntarily of enough votes.

More than a dozen candidates are announced in this district to succeed Dick in congress. Of local interest is the following Associated Press dispatch from Washington: An effort will be made to get Secretary Hay into the campaign for the Ohio senatorship. A member of the Ohio legislature is of the opinion that the state could not honor itself higher than by placing the brilliant secretary of state in the galaxy in which the names of Wade, Chase, Sherman, Pendleton, Corwin, Thurman, Stanley, Matthews and Hanna shine so splendidly. The man who favors the election of John Hay is Elijah W. Hill, of East Liverpool, Columbiana county.

Mr. Hill talked to a number of Ohioans and the information that Hay is his choice has come here in a roundabout way. It gives great satisfaction to these Ohioans who are not directly interested in the selection of a senator. Mr. Hay is a legally qualified voter in the Tenth ward of Cleveland. That is the last place where he voted, and under the common construction of the Ohio law, so long as he remains in Washington there can be no question as to his eligibility, especially so long as he is in the service of the Federal government. But Hay's success, even if he consented to try for the place, is doubtful. A combination of Dick and Cox means at least 91 votes in the legislature for the Akron congressman.

L. W. Strayer, the Washington correspondent of the Pittsburgh Gazette, formerly a well known Ohio newspaper man, says of the Ohio senatorship:

"Congressman Burton was Senator Foraker's choice for a colleague, although it is said by the senator's friends that he has taken no hand in the contest and intends to take none. But with the Cleveland man out of the running, and with the choice between Herrick and Dick, Foraker favored the latter. This statement will be received with surprise by many who supposed that Foraker would rather have seen Herrick come to the senate, thereby passing the governorship to Lieutenant Governor Harding, a Foraker man, and giving the state administration into the hands of the Foraker people. But it is claimed by those who profess to know that the advantage gained by getting possession of the governorship would have been more than counterbalanced by the advent of Herrick in the senate, from Foraker's standpoint."

"If Dick is chosen to succeed Senator Hanna it is believed here that there

THE ORDINANCE EXPECTED TO PASS

Railroad Measure Is Likely to Go
Through Finally Tomorrow Night.

BUSINESS MEN WANT IT

For the railroad ordinance: Barlow, Bullock, Cannon and Moon.

Against the ordinance: Johnston, Croxall and Smith.

Unless the councilmen undergo a change of heart the above is a register of the votes that will be cast on the railroad ordinance, which comes up for its third reading and final passage at the regular meeting of the body tomorrow evening. Should the body stand as above designated the ordinance will be passed, but four votes being necessary to carry it. It is thought, however, that before the meeting is called to order at least one more member will submit to the wishes of his constituency and that the ordinance will go through without the least trouble.

The question will be paramount at the meeting. It is one in which every business man of the city is vitally interested and attention will be centered on the action of the body. "Having the welfare of the citizens at heart, council would have difficulty in arriving at any decision other than favorable to the passage of the measure," stated one member this morning. "To the manufacturers of the city the people look for their subsistence. To aid the manufacturer in bettering his business means as much to the private citizen. That the manufacturers as a whole heartily favor the passage of the ordinance was proven a few weeks ago when nearly as a unit they petitioned council to pass it."

"One of the principles of the constitution of the United States is that a majority shall rule. There is absolutely no doubt that the great majority favor the passage of the ordinance. These opposed to it are so far in the minority that they are scarcely visible. If they feel that they are being trampled, let them all appear before us tomorrow evening and not allow themselves to be represented by one person, who holds personal venom. Council will entertain anything of a reasonable nature, and is not beyond being convinced."

Though no statement was asked of President Horwell of council as to his convictions, it is assured that he is strongly in favor of the passage of the ordinance.

A private citizen appeared before Mayor Weaver this morning and filed a charge against Cornelius Smith, the West End saloonist, of keeping his place open after hours. The man said the saloon was open at 11:20 Saturday night. The case will be heard this week.

Smith denies the charge, saying that no one was in the saloon but himself and his bartender.

YOUNG MAN MISTAKEN FOR A TRAIN ROBBER

Baker James Skinner Had a Most Exciting Experience Coming Home From East Palestine.

HE VERY NARROWLY ESCAPED BEING SHOT

Mistaken for a Jesse James or Cole Younger, James Skinner, employed by the Home Baking company of this city had the most exciting experience of his life early Saturday morning. That he did not meet the fate of a bandit was because the men dealing with him became convinced that there was an error somewhere and desisted from riddling his body with bullets.

Skinner is a single man and makes weekly trips to East Palestine to visit a fair damsel of that town. Being a baker his Sundays fall on Saturday and he selects Friday night as the time to woo the one of his choice. Carrying out his custom he left the city last Friday evening for the home of the girl and it was on the return trip home that he came so near meeting an untimely death. The home of the girl is not far from the East Palestine depot, quite an agreeable reality in this case, allowing Skinner the time generally spent in walking to a depot with the girl.

However, the time limit can always be overdone. A man can hardly expect to catch one after it has pulled out from a station. With Skinner, though, it is somewhat different. He stood at the front door of the young lady's home, waited until the train was under way and then broke out to catch it. He was successful, but landed on the baggage car. The train does not stop after leaving East Palestine until it covers a distance of 20 miles, and it is needless to say that Skinner began to slowly freeze before the next stop was made. It was not his intention to steal a ride, but he was a little afraid to bolt into the car, thinking the baggage master might misunderstand the situation and rode for fully 10 miles before he was nerved enough to make the break.

Opening the door he boldly stalked into the car, springing a great surprise on the baggage master who, acting upon the very appearance of things, pulled a gun from his hip pocket, pointed it directly at Skinner and demanded that he throw up his hands. The frightened baker lost no time in obeying the command. Heavenward his arms darted and after recovering somewhat from the terrible fright, he began an explanation. The result was in his favor, but the baggage master was hard to convince and several times was on the verge of pulling the trigger. After everything was explained, however, Skinner was allowed to get warm and both congratulated themselves on the termination of what might have been a tragedy.

Company.

The Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad company has issued an order stopping all grading work between Vulcan and Yellow Creek and elsewhere in this vicinity. Several hundred men are out of employment as a result. Work was stopped Friday night and Saturday night the men were paid off.

The grading work and the making of the new freight yards at Wellsville has been in charge of Contractor C. A. Sims and Harrison Rinehart. No time is set for the resumption of work. No cause is given by the railroad company as to why the work was stopped.

Some of the men employed on the Rinehart contract are at work on the belt line railroad in Wellsville today besides about 20 teams.

ACCUSED OF THEFT

Boy of 16 Charged With Stealing a Plate from a Pottery.

Frank Nelson, aged 16, was arrested this afternoon by Officer Woods and locked up at central station on a charge preferred against him by Alfred Woods.

The latter is employed at the D. E. McNicol pottery and alleges that Nelson entered the plant this morning and stole a plate valued at $3.

Lively Interest Shown.

The amateur baseball teams are showing lively interest in the News Review's great prize offer. There is yet plenty of room on the list for more entries, and boys thinking of competing should at once consult the circulation manager of this paper.

He was successful, but landed on the baggage car. The train does not stop after leaving East Palestine until it covers a distance of 20 miles, and it is needless to say that Skinner began to slowly freeze before the next stop was made. It was not his intention to steal a ride, but he was a little afraid to bolt into the car, thinking the baggage master might misunderstand the situation and rode for fully 10 miles before he was nerved enough to make the break.

Opening the door he boldly stalked into the car, springing a great surprise on the baggage master who, acting upon the very appearance of things, pulled a gun from his hip pocket, pointed it directly at Skinner and demanded that he throw up his hands. The frightened baker lost no time in obeying the command. Heavenward his arms darted and after recovering somewhat from the terrible sight, he began an explanation. The result was in his favor, but the baggage master was hard to convince and several times was on the verge of pulling the trigger. After everything was explained, however, Skinner was allowed to get warm and both congratulated themselves on the termination of what might have been a tragedy.

RUSSIAN FLEET

It is Said That Not One of the Powers

this Move.

CHINA IS FOR THE JAPS

St. Petersburg, Feb. 22.—(Special).—Some morning the Russian Black sea fleet may be unexpectedly found in the Mediterranean approaching Turkey. Being assured that this is once an accomplished fact, not one of the powers would object. Diplomatic negotiations toward that end are said to be progressing. The Black sea fleet would turn the vital question of the command of the sea in the far east in favor of Russia.

TOO COLD FOR FIGHTING IN MANCHURIA.

London, Feb. 22.—(Special).—Baron Hayashia, Japanese minister here, believes that the Japanese troops may wait two or three months before operating in Manchuria. Ice retards the disembarkation of Japanese forces, the harbors being frozen over. The minister discredits the report that 2,500 Russians have been killed in battle on the Yalu river, saying that the Japanese forces in that vicinity are not large enough to inflict much loss. The next demonstration is regarded as a possible attack on the Japanese fleet at Port Arthur.

SYMPATHY OF CHINA IS WITH THE JAPS

Berlin, February 22.—(Special).—The Chinese minister here is quoted as having proclaimed that China's neutrality is only temporary, and that no one can tell what change a day may bring forth in China's attitude. The minister said: "It should never be forgotten that the war will be fought in Manchuria, Chinese territory, and that the excitement of the Chinese people will increase as the fighting progresses. Our nation sympathizes with the Japanese."

WANTS TO QUIT.

J. R. Warner, of the National China company, has returned from Newark, N. J., where he attended the meeting of the stockholders of the Union Pottery company, representing his own interests and those of other local stockholders. Mr. Warner was adverse to discussing the affairs of the company, but stated that the operation of the Union plant here is a matter of grave doubt. As has been announced Mr. Moreland, the principal stockholder, is anxious to get out of business, and for this reason he wants the business of the company brought to a close.

It is evident that the only hope for a resumption at the Union is the formation of a new company that will take over his interest and this may be arranged if his holdings can be secured at a reasonable figure. Other than Mr. Moreland the stockholders are willing to remain in the business, and there is a prospect of them doing so.

It will be remembered that Brownley lost his entire line of samples in the great Baltimore fire and those he has on exhibition are duplicates secured here just before his departure. The New York district is said to be now well sprinkled with salesmen and buyers, in spite of the extreme bad weather and unfavorable conditions.

Report of Russian Repulse Along Yalu River Has Reached London.

CZAR NICHOLAS IS DESPONDENT

Emperor of Russia Much Cast Down
By Necessity of Fighting Japan—
Troops Being Rapidly Forwarded to Scene of Coming Strife.

London, Feb. 22.—The cables are still absolutely silent with regard to the progress of the war, but there are vague rumors of land fighting. As an instance, the Paris edition of the New York Herald's correspondent at St. Petersburg talks of a Russian repulse on the Yalu river with a loss of 2,500 lives. There are rumors are unconfirmed and from a reliable quarter the Morning Post's Chefoo correspondent says he learns tens of thousands of Japanese are advancing by forced marches from various parts of Korea on the Yalu and that severe fighting is expected shortly. There are the only references to actual operations that have reached London.

The announcement that General Kodama has been replaced in the Japanese cabinet by Mr. Kosikawa is regarded that General Kodama is about to take command of the Japanese land forces. Kodama, who is Japan's leading general, did splendid work during the Sino-Japanese war.

It is said that Viceroy Alexieff has asked the ministry of marine to send him officers who are not too young and admirals who are not too old, of whom he already has too many. The viceroy has issued proclamations to the Chinese throughout Manchuria seeking to enlist their sympathy in behalf of Russia and their assistance in maintaining the railway intact by representing to them Japan's alleged treacherous methods in beginning the war.

Russia Threatens India.

A Port Arthur dispatch received at St. Petersburg reports the Russian cruiser Novik had been repaired and had left her dock. The Standard's Kieff correspondent hears that the Caucasus and Turkestan armies are to be mobilized. He adds that the rumor is not confirmed officially, but says if it is true it can only be interpreted as a veiled threat against India in certain emergencies.

The correspondent at Tientsin of the Standard reports an attack by 500 Chinese "brigands" on the Russian post at Foo Chow as probably an attempt to wreck the railway.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 22.—The czar, according to those who have access to his presence, feels keenly the outbreak of hostilities and sorrows at the burdens the war entails. Since the receipt of the news of the bombardment of Port Arthur, his majesty has been much occupied with conferences and has only appeared in public on one or two occasions to review the departing troops or to show himself at a window of the winter palace to acknowledge patriotic demonstrations. Persons who have seen his majesty say he is looking sad and careworn and that his well known kindness of heart causes him to feel acutely the loss of his men.

His majesty's sole recreation now consists in a morning saunter in the garden adjoining the palace. The ground is covered with snow, but still he walks about, invariably accompanied by five Savoyard dogs, which are trained to march in single file behind him. The czar selects one of the dogs to head the procession.

When his majesty addressed some troops a few days ago and admonished them in these words: "Remember your enemy is brave, bold and cunning," he could not disguise his emotion, and his voice shook very much. He is grieved over what he considers to be the treacherous conduct of the Japanese.

Sympathy From Three Sovereigns.

It is known that the czar has received at least three personal letters from European sovereigns expressing the heartiest sympathy. The potentates are Emperor William of Germany, King Christian of Denmark and King Oscar of Sweden and Norway. The letter from Emperor William was brought by Col. Von Schenk, commander of the Alexander III regiment of Prussian grenadiers, of whom the czar is honorary colonel, and concluded with the significant words, "God is with us." The epistle from the czar's august grandfather, King Christian, is said to be more than an ordinary exchange between close relatives, and the missive from King Oscar is of the friendliest character and contains the warmest assurances for Russia in her hour of trial and for the czar personally. All is in readiness for the mobilization of the entire Russian army should that become necessary. In a fortnight 100,000 additional troops will be in Manchuria. Three army corps of Siberian rifles have already been organized, and a fourth soon will be completed. There is also a brigade of Cossack artillery, armed with excellent mountain guns.

Although the Japanese seem to be making Port Arthur one of their main objectives, military men here do not believe that they will be able to effect and hold a landing there. The entire country is strongly held by a division of Cossacks, which was quietly moved out to the far east from the Caucasus some time ago. Other Cossack regiments are under orders to join their comrades. The Russian army will have a distinctly "Cossack" appearance. Enormous shakos of black, long-haired sheepskin will be worn by the officers and men of the fighting regiments. This headgear is known as "papala" and is most practical in keeping the head and neck warm and the bleak Manchurian winds from the eyes and ears.

Stories of the privations suffered by the soldiers on the military trains going to the east are grossly exaggerated. Covered freight trucks have been converted into really comfortable cars for the men. The sides are lined with felt, windows have been cut, stoves set up and the movable shelves for sleeping are removed in the day time. Each car can carry forty men but only thirty-six are taken. Each man is allowed three-quarters of a pound of hot beef daily, besides the regular rations supplied from the special kitchen cars.

Japanese Fleet Intact.

Tokio, Feb. 22.—The reports from various quarters saying that Admiral Togo's fleet was partly crippled in the operations at Port Arthur are unfounded. It has been unnecessary to send a single large ship to Sasebo for repairs. Two torpedo destroyers have been damaged but not in fighting. The Akabono, in attempting to coal from a collier during a storm, collided with the Oboro, disabling her machinery. Both were sent to Sasebo to be repaired and they will be ready for service soon. The armored cruiser Chikuma has been docked at Sasebo and cleaned. She had been in the water for months and her bottom was so foul that her speed was impaired.

The battleship Shikishima, which was injured on the eve of war, was repaired in time to participate in Admiral Togo's attack on Port Arthur. On Feb. 9, she was returning to Sasebo after the naval manoeuvres and while changing her berth struck bottom. Her accident was at first regarded as serious and it was thought that Japan would have to defer war until the Shikishima had been repaired owing to the then evenly balanced strength of Japan and Russia. When docked it was found that the damage was slight and repairs were effected in a few days. The accident was kept secret. It was generally thought that the battleship was still docked at Sasebo and unable to participate in the attack on Port Arthur.

Admiral Togo's men were eager to fight and the men of the torpedo flotilla who were sent to reconnoiter at Dalny on the night of February 8 were bitterly disappointed that they missed the Port Arthur fight, and they almost demanded of Admiral Togo that he permit them to engage the enemy at the next opportunity.

Commanders for New Cruisers.

Captain Takenouchi, a former naval attaché at Paris, has been appointed to command the Nishin and Captain Onouye has been appointed to command the Kasuga, the two cruisers which were purchased from the Argentine republic. The Kasuga has gone to Kure to outfit. She will be ready for sea in two weeks. The Nishin is outfitting at Yokohama.

Advices to the Japanese government from Peking says that while at Mukden Viceroy Alexieff asked the Chinese troops to aid in guarding the railway, so as to prevent the interruption of traffic. The Chinese refused the request and asked for instructions from Peking. The Chinese government told them to inform Alexieff that as Russia had insisted that the Chinese were unable to guard the railway in time of peace, surely Russia could not expect them to guard it in time of war. Aden, Feb. 22.—The P. and O. company's steamer Mongolia encountered 460 miles north of Aden a Russian battleship and four torpedo boat destroyers. After the vain attempt of a destroyer to cut off the Mongolia all the warships gave chase, but being unable to overtake her, they signalled her to stop. The Mongolia obeyed and a destroyer, after a close scrutiny,

We Shall Buy a Million Bottles of Liquezone and Give Them to the Sick.

We have purchased for $100,000 the American rights to Liquezone. We thus control the only way to kill germs in the body and end a germ disease. We want the sick to know this product, and at once. So we make this remarkable offer. We will buy a million 50c bottles and give them to a million sick ones. Will you—if you need it—let us buy one for you?

Costs $500,000.

We publish this offer in every great newspaper in America. The cost of the offer, we expect, will reach $500,000. We pay that price because it seems the only way to quickly let the sick know what Liquezone does. The greatest value of Liquezone lies in the fact that it kills germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. And no man knows another way to do it. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Liquezone does in germ troubles what all the drugs, all the skill in the world, cannot do without it. It cures diseases which medicine never cures.

Acts Like Oxygen.

Liquezone is the result of a process which men have spent over 20 years in perfecting. Its virtues are derived solely from gas, made in large part from the best oxygen producers. By a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time, these gases are made part of the liquid product. The result is a product that does what oxygen does. Oxygen gas, as you know, is the very source of vitality. Liquezone is a vitalizing tonic with which no other known product can compare. But germs are vegetables; and Liquezone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetable matter. Yet this wonderful product which no germ can resist, is to the human body, the most essential element of life.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.

All diseases that begin with fever—all inflammations—all catarrhs—all contagious diseases—all the results of impure or poisonous blood. In nervous debility Liquezone acts as a vitalizer, accomplishing what no drug can do.

50c. Bottle Free.

If you need Liquezone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on your local druggist for a full-size bottle, and we will pay your druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you; to show you what Liquezone is, and what it can do. In justice to yourself, please accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligation whatever. Since the receipt of the news of the bombardment of Port Arthur, his majesty has been much occupied with conferences and has only appeared in public on one or two occasions to review the departing troops or to show himself at a window of the winter palace to acknowledge patriotic demonstrations. Persons who have seen his majesty say he is looking sad and careworn and that his well known kindness of heart causes him to feel acutely the loss of his men.

His majesty's sole recreation now consists in a morning saunter in the garden adjoining the palace. The ground is covered with snow, but still he walks about, invariably accompanied by five Savoyard dogs, which are trained to march in single file behind him. The czar selects one of the dogs to head the procession.

When his majesty addressed some troops a few days ago and admonished them in these words: "Remember your enemy is brave, bold and cunning." He could not disguise his emotion, and his voice shook very much. He is grieved over what he considers to be the treacherous conduct of the Japanese.

Sympathy From Three Sovereigns.

It is known that the czar has received at least three personal letters from European sovereigns expressing the heartiest sympathy. The potentates are Emperor William of Germany, King Christian of Denmark and King Oscar of Sweden and Norway. The letter from Emperor William was brought by Col. Von Schenk, commander of the Alexander III regiment of Prussian grenadiers, of which the czar is honorary colonel, and concluded with the significant words, "God is with us." The epistle from the czar's august grandfather, King Christian, is said to be more than an ordinary exchange between close relatives, and the missive from King Oscar is of the friendliest character and contains the warmest assurances for Russia in her hour of trial and for the czar personally. All is in readiness for the mobilization of the entire Russian army should that become necessary. In a fortnight 100,000 additional troops will be in Manchuria. Three army corps of Siberian rifles have already been organized, and a fourth soon will be completed. There is also a brigade of Cossack artillery, armed with excellent mountain guns.

Although the Japanese seem to be making Port Arthur one of their main objectives, military men here do not believe that they will be able to effect and hold a landing there. The entire country is strongly held by a division of Cossacks, which was quietly moved out to the far east from the Caucasus some time ago. Other Cossack regiments are under orders to join their comrades. The Russian army will have a distinctly "Cossack" appearance. Enormous shakos of black, long-haired sheepskin will be worn by the officers and men of the fighting regiments. This headgear is known as "papaha" and is most practical in keeping the head and neck warm and the bleak Manchurian winds from the eyes and ears.

Stories of the privations suffered by the soldiers on the military trains going to the east are grossly exaggerated. Covered freight trucks have been converted into really comfortable cars for the men. The sides are lined with felt, windows have been cut, stoves set up and the movable shelves for sleeping are removed in the day time. Each car can carry forty men but only thirty-six are taken. Each man is allowed three-quarters of a pound of hot beef daily, besides the regular rations supplied from the special kitchen cars.

Japanese Fleet Intact.

Tokio, Feb. 22.—The reports from various quarters saying that Admiral Togo's fleet was partly crippled in the operations at Port Arthur are unfounded. It has been unnecessary to send a single large ship to Sasebo for repairs. Two torpedo destroyers have been damaged but not in fighting. The Akabono, in attempting to coal from a collier during a storm, collided with the Oboro, disabling her machinery. Both were sent to Sasebo to be repaired and they will be ready for service soon. The armored cruiser Chiyoda has been docked at Sasebo and cleaned. She had been in the water for months and her bottom was so foul that her speed was impaired.

The battleship Shikishima, which was injured on the eve of war, was repaired in time to participate in Admiral Togo's attack on Port Arthur. On Feb. 9, she was returning to Sasebo after the naval manoeuvres and while changing her berth struck bottom. Her accident was at first regarded as serious and it was thought that Japan would have to defer war until the Shikishima had been repaired owing to the then evenly balanced strength of Japan and Russia. When docked it was found that the damage was slight and repairs were effected in a few days. The accident was kept secret. It was generally thought that the battleship was still docked at Sasebo and unable to participate in the attack on Port Arthur.

Admiral Togo's men were eager to fight and the men of the torpedo flotilla who were sent to reconnoitre at Dalny on the night of February 8 were bitterly disappointed that they missed the Port Arthur fight, and they almost demanded of Admiral Togo that he permit them to engage the enemy at the next opportunity.

Commanders for New Cruisers.

Captain Takenouchi, a former naval attaché at Paris, has been appointed to command the Nishin and Captain Onouye has been appointed to command the Kasuga, the two cruisers which were purchased from the Argentine republic. The Kasuga has gone to Kure to outfit. She will be ready for sea in two weeks. The Nishin is outfitting at Yokohama.

Advices to the Japanese government from Peking says that while at Mukden Viceroy Alexieff asked the Chinese troops to aid in guarding the railway, so as to prevent the interruption of traffic. The Chinese refused the request and asked for instructions from Peking. The Chinese government told them to inform Alexieff that as Russia had insisted that the Chinese were unable to guard the railway in time of peace, surely Russia could not expect them to guard it in time of war. Aden, Feb. 22.—The P. and O. company's steamer Mongolia encountered 460 miles north of Aden a Russian battleship and four torpedo boat destroyers. After the vain attempt of a destroyer to cut off the Mongolia all the warships gave chase, but being unable to overtake her, they signalled her to stop. The Mongolia obeyed and a destroyer, after a close scrutiny,

We Shall Buy a Million Bottles of Liquezone and Give Them to the Sick.

We have purchased for $100,000 the American rights to Liquezone. We thus control the only way to kill germs in the body and end a germ disease. We want the sick to know this product, and at once. So we make this remarkable offer. We will buy a million 50c bottles and give them to a million sick ones. Will you—if you need it—let us buy one for you?

Costs $500,000.

We publish this offer in every great newspaper in America. The cost of the offer, we expect, will reach $500,000. We pay that price because it seems the only way to quickly let the sick know what Liquezone does. The greatest value of Liquezone lies in the fact that it kills germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. And no man knows another way to do it. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Liquezone does in germ troubles what all the drugs, all the skill in the world, cannot do without it. It cures diseases which medicine never cures.

Acts Like Oxygen.

Liquezone is the result of a process which men have spent over 20 years in perfecting. Its virtues are derived solely from gas, made in large part from the best oxygen producers. By a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time, these gases are made part of the liquid product.

The result is a product that does what oxygen does. Oxygen gas, as you know, is the very source of vitality. Liquezone is a vitalizing tonic with which no other known product can compare. But germs are vegetables; and Liquezone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetable matter. Yet this wonderful product which no germ can resist, is, to the human body, the most essential element of life.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.

Asthma, Anemia, Bronchitis, Blood Poison, Bright's Disease, Bowel Troubles, Coughs—Colds, Consumption, Colic—Cramp, Constipation, Catarrh—Cancer, Dysentery—Diarrhea, Dandruff—Dropsy, Hay Fever—Influenza, Kidney Diseases, Jaundice, Leucorrhea, Liver Troubles, Malaria—Neuritis, Many Heart Troubles, Piles—Pneumonia, Pleurisy—Quinsy, Rheumatism, Skin Diseases, Scrofula—Syphilis, Stomach Troubles, Throat Troubles, Tuberculosis, Varicose Veins, Women's Diseases.

Dyspepsia, Acids—Erysipelas, Fevers—Gall Stones, Gout—Gonorrhea, Gonorrhea—Gleet, Throat Troubles, Tuberculosis, Varicose Veins, Women's Diseases.

All diseases that begin with fever—all inflammation—all catarrh—all contagious diseases—all results of impure or poisonous blood.

In nervous debility Liquezone acts as a vitalizer, accomplishing what no drugs can do.

50c. Bottle Free.

If you need Liquezone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on your local druggist for a full-size bottle, and we will pay your druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you; to show you what Liquezone is, and what it can do. In justice to yourself, please accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligation whatever.

Liquezone costs 50c. and $1.

A Timely Suggestion.
 This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be ward off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children, for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. THE VACANCY

IN THE SENATE

The Right of the Legislature to Elect For Two Terms.

SOME STORIES OF HANNA

A Batch of Interesting Anecdotes That Illustrate His Kindness and Generosity—A Friend of Reporters—Liked Men Who Could Do Things.

Columbus, February 22.—When the sessions of the two houses are opened the legislature will be formally notified by Governor Herrick of the death of Ohio's junior senator, and at that time will begin the interesting contest for the selection of a colleague for Hon. Joseph B. Foraker.

Under the provisions of the federal constitution, the legislature must begin balloting for a successor on the second Tuesday after announcement is received that there is a vacancy. This means that the initial ballot will be held on March 1.

The discussion as to whether the present legislature can elect a senator for both the long and the short terms, while not commanding a second thought from the politicians, is engrossing the attention of those lawyers given to study of constitutional questions. Frank S. Monnett, ex-attorney general, says that when Senator Hanna was first elected to the senate six years ago, Governor Bushnell asked his department to look up this very question, and that after searching precedents and law he rendered an opinion to the effect that the legislature could elect for both the long and the short terms. This was done, and the United States senate, which is the sole judge of the election and qualification of its members, sustained the contention. Mr. Monnett is of the opinion that this and other precedents, the one established first upon the resignation of Return J. Meigs, Jr., in 1808, and again in the case of Garfield in 1880, fully cover the present case.

Short stories about Senator Hanna interest the people at this time. Pages have been written about his life during the past few days, but among the mass of featured articles none gives the reader a clearer insight than incidents of his life noted in paragraphs.

Walter Wellman, the famous correspondent, pays this tribute to Senator Hanna:

"Senator Hanna was one of the greatest reporters I ever knew. He knew what was news and what interested the people. He grasped easily all the little details which proved interesting reading, and if he ever had written he would undoubtedly have proved to be as great a writer as he was a politician.

"At the time of the shooting of President McKinley I was on an ocean liner bound for New York. The morning after the president was shot I arrived in New York. I caught the first train for Buffalo and arrived there about noon.

"The first public man I met was Senator Hanna. He invited me to the club. We stayed there about two hours. The senator told me all about the shooting and the events that developed afterwards, and he told it so well that I needed to see no one else about it.

"The next morning the first page of the Chicago Record-Herald was almost filled with Senator Hanna's account of the assassination of President McKinley."

A close political friend for many years of Senator Hanna vouches for the following story, says the Cleveland Leader:

It was the martyred president, William McKinley, who really was responsible for Mark Hanna becoming a United States senator. After the presidential campaign of 1896 Mr. Hanna refused to be a candidate for any public office, but he was prominently mentioned for a cabinet position. That was at a time when the opposition was trying to make much political capital by attacking Mr. Hanna and accusing him of dominating McKinley. When the demand that Mr. Hanna should accept a public office became strong, and almost irresistible, he called upon McKinley for advice. That was after McKinley's election, and the conference was held at the Canton home of the president.

"They must stop this talk of having you in my cabinet," Mr. McKinley said. "If you were in the cabinet it would be charged that you were running me. You must go to the senate. I need you there. You must be there."

John Sherman was given the cabinet position and Mr. Hanna was elected to the senate.

The New York Tribune furnishes this interesting joke turned on another prominent Ohioan:

Senator Hanna lately attempted to perpetrate a joke. One evening Tom Johnson, who had just been elected mayor of Cleveland, espied Senator Hanna in a corridor of the Waldorf-Astoria. Though enemies politically, Hanna and Johnson have long been warm personal friends, and as soon as Johnson saw his fellow townsman

he rolled up to him with the salutation:

"Why, hello, Mark."

"Hello, Tom. When did you get in?"

"Yesterday. Came in on a little quiet tour. Been down to Bay Ridge to see my mother."

"How do you like your job as mayor?"

"First-rate; first-rate. All I have to do is to talk."

"Then I know of no better man for the office than yourself, Tom."

Senator Hanna liked a man who could do things. Above all he liked a man who had initiative, and equally he disliked a man who made excuses and hadn't a plan when called upon to do a piece of work, says the New York Sun.

He took up with Myron T. Herrick, governor of Ohio, because he did things, and did them right, when he was a clerk in a bank in which Mr. Hanna was interested. This liking of the senator for Mr. Herrick because he was a young man who knew, is one of the secrets of the latter's rise, for Mr. Hanna was among those who saw to it that young Herrick was rewarded by advancement for his diligence in business.

The two men have been friends ever since the younger proved to the older that he had ideas, and as much as 20 years ago Mr. Hanna had been so impressed with Mr. Herrick's ability that he then remarked that Herrick was made out of gubernatorial and presidential timber—a prophecy that was partly fulfilled last November when Mr. Herrick was elected governor.

SUGAR TRUST FAILS.

Attempt to Corner Market in Mexico Proves Unsuccessful.

Mexico City, Feb. 22.—The sugar trust organized here a year ago and comprising in its membership the largest planters in the various states, has failed to corner the sugar product successfully and finds itself with liabilities of $7,200,000 and with assets taken on a liberal estimate of $7,700,000. These assets include the stock of sugar on hand. The supply of sugar in this country is already far in excess of the demand, and the new crop is coming to the market. These facts give rise to the fear that the assets are not what might be hoped.

It has been feared that the trust would smash but three very wealthy members of the combine have come forward as personal guarantors of the liabilities so it has turned out that the courts will now be called on to wind up the trust, which owes banks nearly $2,000,000. One of the causes of the failure of this concern to control prices here is said to be the American-Cuban reciprocity treaty, which demoralized local sugar prices. The trust aims to keep prices up in this country and to regulate export prices for surplus sugar.

SULTAN HURRIES HIS SHIP.

Cruiser Built at Philadelphia to Sail for Home March 1.

Philadelphia, Feb. 22.—The cruiser Medjidia, built for the imperial Ottoman navy at Cramps, is under hurry orders to get home. She will leave here March 1 and will carry her own flag. It had been intended to take the vessel to Constantinople and deliver her there to the Turkish naval authorities but a change in this plan was found necessary and the ship will be put in commission and unfurl her flag at this port.

Captain Buckam of Cramps shipyards, who will take the cruiser across, has been commissioned a captain in the Ottoman navy and will put her in commission. It will also be necessary to commission the other officers.

The Medjidia will leave port fully ready for a naval engagement. Her guns, all of the latest pattern in use in the United States navy, were made in Bethlehem, Pa. All are practically in place. The magazines are to be filled with ammunition as if for a war cruise.

Cornell Senior Loses Life in Attempt to Save Another.

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 22.—In an attempt to save the life of Ames G. Allen of Chicago, with whom he was skating on Cayuga lake, Louis T. Dickinson, New York city, a senior at Cornell university, lost his life.

The two young men had skated as far as Atwater, 18 miles north of Ithaca, when Allen broke through the ice. While attempting to pull him out Dickinson fell in and sank after struggling for some minutes to regain the ice. Allen was dragged ashore after having been in the water more than half an hour.

Early

Loves of Washington

By CHESTER A. MCKAY

(Copyright, 1904, by C. N. Lurie.)

THOUGH lovers be perjurers at whom Jove laughs, George Washington, whose inability to tell a lie is traditional, was none the less a notable lover. Indeed, it seems to have been but shortly after the time of the alleged incident of the cherry tree that Washington made the acquaintance of Dan Cupid. While still a schoolboy, according to the late Paul Leicester Ford, he was "caught romping with one of the largest girls," and more serious romances quickly followed. As early as 1748, when Washington was only sixteen, he was deeply enamored of a "lowland beauty," of whom he wrote in glowing terms to his youthful correspondents, but whose identity his biographers have failed to establish. His youthful ardor was so great that on several occasions he broke into poetry, of which she was the subject. Still he does not appear to have been wholly insensible to the charms of other maidens, for at this same period he inscribed an affecting acrostic to a young lady of the Alexander family, Frances Alexa by name.

After his visit to the Barbados in 1751, whither he went with his brother Lawrence for the latter's health, he wrote to William Fauntleroy that he had hurried back to Virginia for the purpose of calling on Fauntleroy's sister, Betty, in hopes "of obtaining a revocation of her former cruel sentence."

After his second campaign, resulting in the defeat of Braddock and the debt of Washington as an American hero, he no longer had to sue for the favor of the Virginia damsel. On the contrary, Lord Fairfax wrote that if he did not promptly put in an appearance at Belvoir the ladies would go in carriages, on horse or afoot "to see if Washington was still the same identical gent that had lately departed to defend his country's cause."

In 1756 Washington spent a week in New York with Beverly Robinson, who had married Susannah Phillips, daughter of Frederick Phillips, one of the largest landed proprietors of the colony. Here he met Mary Phillips, then a girl of twenty-five. Short as were his visits, they were long enough to bring him to her feet. She declined his urgent proposals and two years later gave her heart to Lieutenant Colonel Roger Morris. A curious turn of fate made the Morris home Washington's headquarters in 1770, both Morris and his wife being fugitive Tories.

It was in March, 1758, when Washington was journeying to Williamsburg to consult physicians on the state of his health, that he met Mrs. Martha Dandridge Custis, the relict of the wealthy Daniel Parke Custis. She was twenty-six years old, nine months Washington's senior and a widow of seven months' standing. Washington urged his suit to Mrs. Custis with an impetuosity equal to that with which he had wooed Miss Phillips and in January, 1759, was married to Mrs. Custis.

Very little is really known about Mrs. Washington. One historian describes her as "petite, overfond, tempestuous, obstinate and a poor speller." Be that as it may, Washington loved her devotedly, and her poor spelling and her temper he could readily excuse in view of his own shortcomings in those respects. Their married life, interrupted as it was by the war and the duties of the presidency, was nevertheless so happy that the general, in congratulating De Chastellux on his approaching marriage, delivered an eulogy on the married state. In his own Washington left to "his dearly beloved wife" the use of all his property and named her as his executrix. She did not survive him long.

Demands High Price to Let Russian Black Sea Fleet Out.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—Once again the porte has lent a willing ear to the suggestions of Russia that the Black sea fleet should one day be found unexpectedly in the Mediterranean. Turkey being assured that this, once an accomplished fact, not one of the powers would have a word to say in objection. If they did, Russia would be answerable.

Abdul Hamid, seeing a big service in his power to concede, exacts in return terms which, much as Russia would like to get her splendid Black sea squadron out, are almost more than this country can digest. These terms are that Turkey must be given a free hand in settling the Balkan difficulties in the war which the coming months are deemed sure to bring.

Such egress from the Black sea would release the big armored ships Kniazpotemkin and Tavriskei, 12,500 tons each; the Ekaterina and the Cisma, 11,800 tons each; the Sinope, 10,000 tons; the Georgi Polibednosoe, 12,000 tons; the Dvianadzat Apostolov and the Rostislav, about 9,000 tons each; 10 torpedo catchers and about 25 torpedo boats—a force which would turn the vital question of the command of the sea in the far east in favor of Russia.

United States Warships Preparing for Winter Maneuvers.

Quantanamo, Cuba, Feb. 22.—A dozen United States warships are here preparing for the maneuvers. A camp of marines will be established at McCalla hill and marines will replace the Cubans who are now in charge of the harbor lights. The work of the Cubans is considered unsatisfactory. Considerable work has been done in sounding for the foundation of the dry dock, etc., and in fixing ranges. A spindle has been erected off Cervelds point.

There are 23 cases of measles on board the battleship Maine and one on the converted cruiser Yankee. There is also one case of smallpox isolated on a barge. All of the sick are reported convalescent.

What You Need for Constipation.

When troubled with constipation, what you need is a remedy that is sure to produce the desired effect. A remedy that is mild and gentle in its action. A remedy that leaves the bowels in a natural and healthy condition. A remedy that is easy and pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets meet all of these requirements. Give them a trial and you will never wish to take another dose of pills. Use them as directed and they will cure chronic constipation. Price 25 cents. Every box is warranted for sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

Parkersburg Concern Claims Damages for Alleged Unlawful Acts.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Feb. 22.—Suits for damages will be instituted by the Parkersburg Iron and Steel company against the National Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and individual members of the organization.

The association ordered a strike of its members working in the local plant and the company claims to have sustained losses by the alleged unlawful acts of strikers.

An Early Riser.

A strong, healthy, active constitution depends largely on the condition of the liver. The famous little pills known as DeWitt's Little Early Risers not only cleanse the system, but they strengthen the action of the liver and rebuild the tissues supporting that organ. Little Early Risers are easy to act, they never gripe and yet they are absolutely certain to produce results that are satisfactory in all cases. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger.

NAVAL BILL TAKEN UP.

House Will Consider Great Lakes Training Station Matter.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The house has the house naval bill under debate and at the proper time it is probable that a rule will be brought in making the item in the bill providing for a training station on the great lakes in order. It is expected that a contest will ensue over the location of the station. Notice has been given by Mr. Hitchcock, (Neb.) that he will propose an amendment to the naval bill, providing for the construction of a government armor plate factory. The Indian and the District appropriation bills will follow the naval bill, and there is some expectation that all of them will be passed this week by the house.

Mr. Williams, the minority leader, has served notice that he would endeavor to secure the reading of Washington's farewell address and then have an immediate adjournment.

The Panama canal question will continue to hold exclusive attention of the senate until next Tuesday, when a voting will begin on the treaty.

With the Panama question disposed of, the senate will take up appropriation bills, giving precedence to the agricultural bill. There are features in this measure which will arouse opposition and it is expected that it will be debated at some length. By the time the agricultural bill shall be passed the legislature, executive and judicial appropriation bill will have been reported to be soon followed by the naval, pension and army bill.

Today being Washington's birthday the senate listened to the reading of Washington's farewell address by Senator Heyburn of Idaho.

What's the secret of happy, vigorous health? Simply keeping the bowels, the stomach, the liver and kidneys strong and active. Burdock Blood Bitters does it.

A Timely Suggestion.
 This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be ward off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children, for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. THE VACANCY

IN THE SENATE

The Right of the Legislature to Elect For Two Terms.

SOME STORIES OF HANNA

A Batch of Interesting Anecdotes That Illustrate His Kindness and Generosity—A Friend of Reporters—Liked Men Who Could Do Things.

Columbus, February 22.—When the sessions of the two houses are opened the legislature will be formally notified by Governor Herrick of the death of Ohio's junior senator, and at that time will begin the interesting contest for the selection of a colleague for Hon. Joseph B. Foraker. Under the provisions of the federal constitution, the legislature must begin balloting for a successor on the second Tuesday after announcement is received that there is a vacancy. This means that the initial ballot will be held on March 1.

The discussion as to whether the present legislature can elect a senator for both the long and the short terms, while not commanding a second thought from the politicians, is engrossing the attention of those lawyers given to study of constitutional questions. Frank S. Monnett, ex-attorney general, says that when Senator Hanna was first elected to the senate six years ago, Governor Bushnell asked his department to look up this very question, and that after searching precedents and law he rendered an opinion to the effect that the legislature could elect for both the long and the short terms. This was done, and the United States senate, which is the sole judge of the election and qualification of its members, sustained the contention. Mr. Monnett is of the opinion that this and other precedents, the one established first upon the resignation of Return J. Meigs, Jr., in 1808, and again in the case of Garfield in 1880, fully cover the present case.

Short stories about Senator Hanna interest the people at this time. Pages have been written about his life during the past few days, but among the mass of featured articles none gives the reader a clearer insight than incidents of his life noted in paragraphs.

Walter Wellman, the famous correspondent, pays this tribute to Senator Hanna:

"Senator Hanna was one of the greatest reporters I ever knew. He knew what was news and what interested the people. He grasped easily all the little details which proved interesting reading, and if he ever had written he would undoubtedly have proved to be as great a writer as he was a politician."

"At the time of the shooting of President McKinley I was on an ocean liner bound for New York. The morning after the president was shot I arrived in New York. I caught the first train for Buffalo and arrived there about noon."

"The first public man I met was Senator Hanna. He invited me to the club. We stayed there about two hours. The senator told me all about the shooting and the events that developed afterwards, and he told it so well that I needed to see no one else about it."

"The next morning the first page of the Chicago Record-Herald was almost filled with Senator Hanna's account of the assassination of President McKinley."

A close political friend for many years of Senator Hanna vouches for the following story, says the Cleveland Leader:

It was the martyred president, William McKinley, who really was responsible for Mark Hanna becoming a United States senator. After the presidential campaign of 1896 Mr. Hanna refused to be a candidate for any public office, but he was prominently mentioned for a cabinet position. That was at a time when the opposition was trying to make much political capital by attacking Mr. Hanna and accusing him of dominating McKinley. When the demand that Mr. Hanna should accept a public office became strong, and almost irresistible, he called upon McKinley for advice. That was after McKinley's election, and the conference was held at the Canton home of the president.

"They must stop this talk of having you in my cabinet," Mr. McKinley said. "If you were in the cabinet it would be charged that you were running me. You must go to the senate. I need you there. You must be there." John Sherman was given the cabinet position and Mr. Hanna was elected to the senate.

The New York Tribune furnishes this interesting joke turned on another prominent Ohioan:

Senator Hanna rarely attempted to perpetrate a joke. One evening Tom Johnson, who had just been elected mayor of Cleveland, espied Senator Hanna in a corridor of the Waldorf-Astoria. Though enemies politically, Hanna and Johnson have long been warm personal friends, and as soon as Johnson saw his fellow townsman

he rolled up to him with the salutation:

"Why, hello, Mark."
 "Hello, Tom. When did you get in?"
 "Yesterday. Came in on a little quiet tour. Been down to Bay Ridge to see my mother."
 "How do you like your job as mayor?"
 "First-rate; first-rate. All I have to do is to talk."
 "Then I know of no better man for the office than yourself, Tom."

Senator Hanna liked a man who could do things. Above all he liked a man who had initiative, and equally he disliked a man who made excuses and hadn't a plan when called upon to do a piece of work, says the New York Sun.

He took up with Myron T. Herrick, governor of Ohio, because he did things, and did them right, when he was a clerk in a bank in which Mr. Hanna was interested. This liking of the senator for Mr. Herrick because he was a young man who knew, is one of the secrets of the latter's rise, for Mr. Hanna was among those who saw to it that young Herrick was rewarded by advancement for his diligence in business.

The two men have been friends ever since the younger proved to the older that he had ideas, and as much as 20 years ago Mr. Hanna had been so impressed with Mr. Herrick's ability that he then remarked that Herrick was made out of gubernatorial and presidential timber—a prophecy that was partly fulfilled last November when Mr. Herrick was elected governor.

SUGAR TRUST FAILS.

Attempt to Corner Market in Mexico Proves Unsuccessful.

Mexico City, Feb. 22.—The sugar trust organized here a year ago and comprising in its membership the largest planters in the various states, has failed to corner the sugar product successfully and finds itself with liabilities of $7,200,000 and with assets taken on a liberal estimate of $7,700,000. These assets include the stock of sugar on hand. The supply of sugar in this country is already far in excess of the demand, and the new crop is coming to the market. These facts give rise to the fear that the assets are not what might be hoped. It has been feared that the trust would smash but three very wealthy members of the combine have come forward as personal guarantors of the liabilities so it has turned out that the courts will now be called on to wind up the trust, which owes banks nearly $2,000,000. One of the causes of the failure of this concern to control prices here is said to be the American-Cuban reciprocity treaty, which demoralized local sugar prices. The trust aims to keep prices up in this country and to regulate export prices for surplus sugar.

SULTAN HURRIES HIS SHIP.

Cruiser Built at Philadelphia to Sail for Home March 1.

Philadelphia, Feb. 22.—The cruiser Medjidia, built for the imperial Ottoman navy at Cramps, is under hurry orders to get home. She will leave here March 1 and will carry her own flag. It had been intended to take the vessel to Constantinople and deliver her there to the Turkish naval authorities but a change in this plan was found necessary and the ship will be put in commission and unfurl her flag at this port.

Captain Buckam of Cramps shipyards, who will take the cruiser across, has been commissioned a captain in the Ottoman navy and will put her in commission. It will also be necessary to commission the other officers.

The Medjidia will leave port fully ready for a naval engagement. Her guns, all of the latest pattern in use in the United States navy, were made in Bethlehem, Pa. All are practically in place. The magazines are to be filled with ammunition as if for a war cruise.

NAVAL BILL TAKEN UP.

House Will Consider Great Lakes Training Station Matter.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The house has the house naval bill under debate and at the proper time it is probable that a rule will be brought in making the item in the bill providing for a training station on the great lakes in order. It is expected that a contest will ensue over the location of the station. Notice has been given by Mr. Hitchcock, (Neb.) that he will propose an amendment to the naval bill, providing for the construction of a government armor plate factory. The Indian and the District appropriation bills will follow the naval bill, and there is some expectation that all of them will be passed this week by the house.

Mr. Williams, the minority leader, has served notice that he would endeavor to secure the reading of Washington's farewell address and then have an immediate adjournment.

The Panama canal question will continue to hold exclusive attention of the senate until next Tuesday, when a voting will begin on the treaty.

With the Panama question disposed of, the senate will take up appropriation bills, giving precedence to the agricultural bill. There are features in this measure which will arouse opposition and it is expected that it will be debated at some length. By the time the agricultural bill shall be passed the legislature, executive and judicial appropriation bill will have been reported to be soon followed by the naval, pension and army bill.

Today being Washington's birthday the senate listened to the reading of Washington's farewell address by Senator Heyburn of Idaho.

TRADE MARK

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1904.

It is meet and proper that General

Charles Dick should succeed Senator

Hanna in the senate. General Dick was the close and intimate friend of the late senator and probably enjoyed his confidence to a greater extent than any other man conspicuous in Republican politics in Ohio. He was entrusted with the duty of conducting

Senator Hanna's political battles in Ohio, and achieved brilliant success as a campaigner. At the head of the Republican executive committee of Ohio

he won every battle which he fought.

He was also a personal friend of the late President McKinley, who relied upon his good judgment and good sense and deemed him worthy of preferment and trust. General Dick has been before the public for years, and that he is most esteemed where he is best known is shown by the fact that his home district has sent him to congress for four terms, the last time by a vote nearly twice as great as that received by his most formidable opponent. Moreover, he has done excellent service both in the field and at the head of the National Guard of Ohio.

He is still a young man, and has the vigor and the brains to make himself useful to the state and nation for many years to come.

The correspondent who, during the Spanish-American war, heard vigorous cannonading along the Atlantic coast, has transferred his sphere of activity to Port Arthur. Evidently he can hear little else over there that the press censors will allow him to report.

The entire press of the country is now conceding that General Charles

Dick, of Akron, is to be the new senator from Ohio. The News Review was the first newspaper in this vicinity to reint to him as the logical candidate and to forecast his election, again demonstrating the superiority and reliability of its news service. General

Dick has well earned the honor at the hands of the Republicans of Ohio, who will be worthily and ably represented by him in the highest lawmaking body in the land.

Even in this busy age a few minutes devoted to backward glances and a review of the career of the Father of

His Country is time well spent. Washington was a far-sighted statesman, and the advice he gave on public affairs in his day is still timely and wholesome.

Those San Domingo revolutionists will not need to be fired at many times

by Uncle Sam's warships ere they learn that real warfare is no holiday pastime, but a condition once aptly and succinctly described by General Sherman.

The Ohio senatorial contest will be settled satisfactorily and harmoniously, and Democrats who were hoping to see a factional war in Republican ranks will be disappointed.

There has been needless delay in passing the railroad ordinance. The prospect that there is to be action at last is welcome news to the business interests of the city.

Russia, speaking through her ambassador, recognizes Secretary Hay as a great statesman. Mr. Hay's course has been one well calculated to compel such recognition.

This is the week when the senate is expected to ratify the canal treaty.

England is again in the zone of the war scare.

Pittsburg Orchestra Concerts.

The fifteenth set of concerts this season by the Pittsburg orchestra,

Victor Herbert, conductor, will be given

Friday evening, February 26 and

Saturday afternoon, February 27, with

Henri Merck, violoncello soloist. Mr.

Herbert has prepared a list for the most part of familiar music including one of the most loved of the Beethoven symphonies, the "Pastoral." Henri

Merck, the soloist, is the first violon-cello player of the orchestra, which position he has held for several years.

His admirable artistic talent has had many demonstrations since he came to Pittsburg. Only three weeks of the orchestra season remain after these concerts, and the programs prepared are of the finest quality.

LEGISLATURE AT WORK.

Will Resume Consideration of School and Other Pending Bills.

Columbus, O., Feb. 22.—With the contest for United States senatorship practically settled by the announcement of Governor Herrick that he is not a candidate and the endorsement of Congressman Dick of Akron by George B. Cox, it is expected that legislature, which convenes today at 5

p. m., will take up their labors where they were dropped at adjournment in consequence of the death of Senator

Hanna.

In the house Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the school committee will hear arguments on the school code. Tuesday evening the opponents of the Brannock ward local option bill will be given a hearing. The public works committee will make its trip of inspection to Dayton and Cincinnati during the week. The senate will clear the calendar Tuesday and take up for consideration the county salary bill and the measure to increase the compensation of the common pleas judges. The school codes and canal legislation will also be considered in the upper house.

Too late to cure a cold after consumption has fastened its deadly grip way Pine Syrup while yet there is time.

will be little friction between the factions and that many of the storms that have swept the organization in the past will be avoided in the future.

The Pittsburg Dispatch of Sunday published the following:

"I think Governor Myron T. Herrick will be the next senator from Ohio. He is a business man, and the business people of Ohio are strong enough to demand that the vacancy be put in the hands of one who can take care of their interests," said Colonel John N. Taylor, of East Liverpool, O., while in the city yesterday, in speaking of the situation in Ohio as a result of the death of Senator Hanna.

Colonel Taylor is president of the Pottery Association of America and the largest individual manufacturer of pottery in the world. In the congressional fights of the late President William McKinley he was McKinley's principal financial backer.

"Governor Herrick," said Mr. Taylor, "is a business man from any point. The candidacy of General Dick is not taken seriously by thoughtful people."

Cleveland, Feb. 22.—A conference of Republican leaders was held here attended by Governor Herrick, George B. Cox of Cincinnati and others to discuss the situation in connection with the election of a United States senator from Ohio to succeed the late Marcus A. Hanna. At the conclusion of the conference Governor Herrick, who had been strongly urged to become a senatorial candidate and who was generally admitted to hold the key to the entire situation, issued the following formal statement:

will be little friction between the factions and that many of the storms that have swept the organization in the past will be avoided in the future.

"I think Governor Myron T. Herrick will be the next senator from Ohio. He is a business man, and the business people of Ohio are strong enough to demand that the vacancy be put in the hands of one who can take care of their interests," said Colonel John N. Taylor, of East Liverpool, O., while in the city yesterday, in speaking of the situation in Ohio as a result of the death of Senator Hanna.

"Governor Herrick," said Mr. Taylor, "is a business man from any point. The candidacy of General Dick is not taken seriously by thoughtful people."

Cleveland, Feb. 22.—A conference of Republican leaders was held here attended by Governor Herrick, George B. Cox of Cincinnati and others to discuss the situation in connection with the election of a United States senator from Ohio to succeed the late Marcus A. Hanna. At the conclusion of the conference Governor Herrick, who had been strongly urged to become a senatorial candidate and who was generally admitted to hold the key to the entire situation, issued the following formal statement.

"I did not want for obvious reasons to make any statement of my position in the matter of the senatorship until Mr. Hanna had been laid away. I have felt, too, that the proper time could not arrive before today."

"Last November the people of Ohio elected me governor by an unprecedented majority. That election placed in my hands a trust for execution. My duty is plain and clear. I will execute that trust and remain in the governor's chair."

George B. Cox of Cincinnati, who has also been frequently mentioned in connection with the vacancy, said: "I am not and will not be a candidate for the place."

It is now generally admitted among those who stand high in the councils of the party that the action of Governor Herrick and Mr. Cox leaves the way clear for Congressman Dick to become the candidate of the party for the vacant seat in the United States senate. There is strong evidence that the support of both Governor Herrick and George B. Cox will be thrown to Dick. In addition to this it is pointed out that while Secretary Taft and Congressman Burton of this city, the only remaining possibilities now in the field, aside from Gen. Dick, will command strong support in certain quarters, Dick will have practically the entire Republican organization in his favor. Dick's friends point out that he will have the support of such important counties as Hamilton, Franklin, Montgomery, Summit and a number of others of lesser importance.

Lord Palmerston.

Herbert Paul in his "History of Modern England" thus describes Lord Palmerston:

This "gay, eupeptic son of Bellia" was now in his sixty-second year. No English statesman except Walpole and Pitt has passed so large a proportion of his public life in office. The ratio was forty-nine years of office to fifty-nine of public life. While the Tories were in power he was a Tory. For more than twenty years, from 1807 to 1828, he was secretary of war, or, as we should now say, financial secretary to the war office. During that long period he seldom spoke, and Channing, who spoke for pleasure, complained that "he could not bring that three decker Palmerston into action." Lord Palmerston was a man of fashion and a man of pleasure. His house was a social center of much importance. But he was also pre-eminently a man of affairs who never neglected his business and was always master of his subject. When he returned to office under Lord John Russell in 1830 he could be compared with him for knowledge of foreign policy except Metternich and Guizot. He took difficulties as a bold rider takes a still fence, relying on his horse and his luck. Hitherto his luck had been very good, and his horse was a splendid animal. In 1846 England was undoubtedly the first power of the world, as France was the second.

The Queer Sunfish.

The sunfish or headfish is fairly common in the vicinity of Santa Catalina Island. Its general appearance is oblong and deep, very thin or compressed, cut off (truncate) behind, so there appears to be no tail, a mere rim of movable flesh taking its place, which has a very limited use in the slow locomotion of this extraordinary fish. The skin is hard and coarse, rough, scaleless and covered with flat spines, the entire skin covered with a thick coating of slime, which appears to be a world in itself for numerous parasites which prey upon the fish.

This extraordinary fish is one of the few fishes of little or no use to man. "I am of the opinion," says a naturalist, "that the hard skin might be utilized. I once learned that the boys of a certain village in Maine were anxious to secure the muscular envelope of a specimen caught by me to use it as rubber. They cut the hard, elastic substance into round shapes and used them for the interior of home-made baseballs."

Crude, Garish Athens.

An American traveler writes: "Athens itself, as a city, is insufferable. It is raw, garish, new, startling, crude. It smells of paint. It reeks of varnish. It is redolent of last week. It is the newest city one sees in southern Europe. It is dusty, it is noisy, it is vulgar. Everything in it is imitation. The palaces are imitation. The hotels are imitation. The army is imitation. The city is a sham. It is a joy to leave the commonplace streets, to quit the insufferable city and to climb the Acropolis. There everything is calm and peaceful, and the magnificent ruins are restful. There only in Athens do you find a spot which is not oppressive, new and raw. The royal palace is one of the newest and the rawest of all the raw, new buildings."

France Sets the Pace.

"Wife beating is unknown among the French, excitable though they are," says a writer on British manners in the National Review, "and, as every one knows at home, that pastime is commonly indulged in by our lower classes at the expense of a 2s. 6d. fine. In England many little things testify to the accepted 'superiority' of the male sex. A woman bows first, as to her lord and master; in France a man salutes his idol whether noticed or unnoticed and stands with his head uncovered if she stops to speak to him, while the younger men never omit to kiss a lady's hand, to shake which would seem an impertinence."

Tendencies of the Time.

Personal luxury—vulgar, ostentatious, unrefined—is rampant. Our men wear diamonds, sapphires, rubies in their ties, in their sleeve links, in their gold cigarette cases, in their matchboxes. Brutal ostentation is near to being the good form of today. Our women clothe themselves with reckless profusion. Life is murdered in every quarter of the globe to provide them with furs, with feathers, with the hundred and one gewgaws that have come to be considered essential—Today.

Debt and Happiness.

Blodgett—I should think it would be awful to be in debt the way you are. Tiddling—Oh, I don't know. I've known lots of people who owed money, and I've known some who had money owed to them, and the latter always seemed to be the more unhappy.—Boston Transcript.

A Paradox.

"Will you please insert this obituary notice?" writes a correspondent to the editor of a leading daily paper. "I make bold to ask it because I know the deceased had many friends who'd be glad to hear of his death."—London Tit-Bits.

Born to It.

"Some scientist has made the discovery that every one is born left handed." "Well, I can go even further than that. I maintain that every one is born with a predisposition to say 'I done it.'"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Always Fly Away.

Riches have wings all right, but they are, it would seem, trained only for an outward flight.—Judge.

Philosophy is that which enables a rich man to say there is no disgrace in being poor.

WORK MAY BE DONE
FOR A LESS PRICE

Water Works Officials Hope to Save Something on Completion of Pumping Station.

Since the Duquesne Engineering company began the construction of the Wellsville pumping station, it has been paid $8,148.40. At the last meeting of the water works trustees the sixth estimate, amounting to $800, was ordered paid by Auditor Charles McGregor.

The original contract awarded this company amounted to $11,004. This was all the money the trustees had available at that time, and when council appropriated an additional $7,000 for water works purposes, the balance of the work, which, in all would have amounted to about $18,000, was ready to be awarded the Duquesne company. The company refused to accept this.

Since then most of the hard part of the contract has been completed. Had the Duquesne company completed its contract the city would have paid it the difference between the contract price, less payments, which amounts to $4,855.60.

It is believed by the water works trustees that the city can have the uncompleted part of the contract completed for less than the amount due on the old contract. The claim is also made that the materials can be purchased cheaper than when the first contract was let.

The surety of the Duquesne company has been notified by the city of the trouble now existing, and word is daily expected as to what policy will be followed. The attachments issued against the Duquesne company will be heard next Monday. All materials and machinery said to be owned by the company has been attached, and it is probable other attachments will be issued before that date.

BURGLAR HAD TESTAMENT

William French Evidently a Man Who Had Good Training in His Youth.

William French, who claims Pittsburgh as his home, and who was arrested for burglary and held for the grand jury on $500 bond Saturday by Mayor Fogo, was taken to Lisbon today. He gives no reason for entering the Householder store and says little concerning his past life.

Mayor Fogo believes that the man has been afforded gentle training in his youth, basing this thought upon finding a New Testament on French when he was arrested. The little book has been used frequently, for finger marks are visible on many of its pages.

If the recent laws are enforced in this case, French, if convicted, will spend many years in the penitentiary. This law reads "That anyone entering an inhabited building with intent to rob shall be sentenced to the penitentiary for life, unless mercy is recommended by the court. In this event the sentence shall be from five to 30 years."

Washington's birthday was generally observed in Wellsville. Orders were issued a few days ago by the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad company, that no local freight would be operated today, and because of this little business was handled at the two stations.

At the shops work only of a necessary nature was performed. The officials of the shops wanted the employees to work Sunday, but this was refused. The rolling mill was also idle, with the exceptions of a few departments. Many departments in the potteries were also idle.

TRACKS LAID FOR
BELT LINE RAILWAY

Advantage Taken of Sunday And the Legal Holiday to Do the Work.

Taking advantage of Sunday and a legal holiday the C. & P. laid a branch of the belt line railroad on the Lawson property yesterday and today. Today the company is laying the switch on the Charles Lawson property, on the east side of Third street. This completes part of the belt road that has long been in dispute.

Deputy Sheriff Henry Thorn on Wednesday served an injunction on the C. & P. company in the person of Freight Agent E. J. Broderick. The company is restrained from operating the road.

Workmen commenced the switch on the property of the elder Lawson before daylight Sunday. The task was completed by nightfall. Claim Agent Apple, of the C. & P. said that all the rights along the route of the new road have now practically been obtained.

"I am glad the track is down," said the elder Mr. Lawson today. "I have worked hard for the belt road, and offered the company the right to use the property for about $60 a foot. It is worth $90. I will look to the railroad company for a settlement and as my son has received the money from the company I must then seek redress from him."

Contractor H. S. Rinehart said everything would be in readiness to run cars over the line this evening.

LACK OF INTEREST

May Cause the Failure of Move to Organize the Business Men.

Judging from present indications the proposition to organize a Business Men's Protective Association in Wellsville is a failure. This is due to lack of interest.

A meeting of the association was to have been held last Friday evening. Only three gentlemen appeared, consequently no meeting was held. Those who are prominently identified with the movement claim that if no more interest is shown in the future than in the past two weeks it will be impossible to complete the association.

Friars' Club Minstrel Show.

Complete arrangements have been made for the Friar's club minstrel show which will be given in the club rooms in the Whitacre block Friday evening. Rehearsals have been in progress for several weeks, and today costumes were ordered. Each member of the club has been presented with ten invitations. These exhausted no others will be available. The affair promises to be the society event of the season. Following the performance refreshments will be served.

City Hotel Is Popular.

More people were given shelter in the Wellsville jail last night than at any other time during the winter. From four to eight strangers were given shelter for the night every night during the week. Some of the men accommodated Saturday night claimed to be employed by Contractor C. A. Sims. These men were paid off Friday and Saturday, and many were under the influence of liquor when they applied for shelter.

Money For the City.

City Treasurer Andrews expects to receive the semi-annual appropriation from Lisbon next Saturday, but it is possible it may arrive a few days earlier. It is said that when other cities received their drafts from the county, the draft for Wellsville is generally the last to be sent. The city has received an advance of $7,000, which has been sufficient to run the affairs of the city for a few weeks.

Dr. Manchester Presided.

Quarterly communion was observed at the Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning. Dr. Charles E. Manchester, presiding elder of the Steubenville district conference of the M. E. church, presided. The quarterly conference was held in the lecture room of the church Saturday evening, the session being well attended. Three persons were admitted to church membership at the morning service.

Foremen's Benefit Ball.

The dance to be given tonight in the auditorium of the city hall will be in charge of the Volunteer Firemen's association of Wellsville. Tasteful decorations have been placed about the hall in anticipation of the event. Money derived from the affair will be used in purchasing needed utilities for the firemen. Several hundred tickets have been sold.

The work has the appearance of that of amateurs and it is expected that the parties will be located. The authorities are particularly anxious to land these thieves, as it is the first robbery of any magnitude that has occurred in the town since its incorporation.

Curious Hunting Custom.

The Labrador Indians when on a hunt stalk on in advance of the train with their arms, while the women, heavily laden with provisions and means of shelter, drag along slowly after. When the lords and masters begin to think of food time or wish in any way to leave some guide as to their progress for the squaws they thrust an upright spear or stick in the snow and draw in the snow the exact line of the shadow then cast. The women, following painfully along, note the spear and the progress of the shadow and know closely the difference of time. They know, too, whether they dare to linger for a few minutes' rest or if they must hastily catch the stick or spear and hurry on.—Chicago News.

West Point's Origin.

The operations of the troops engaged in the war of the Revolution directed attention to the romantic and commanding heights of West Point, and within a few years after the close of the contest, through the influence of surviving officers of the Continental army it pleased President Washington to include in his message to congress (1793) a recommendation for the establishment of a military academy here.

The act creating the academy did not pass until the year 1802, and then only as a means of giving countenance to the work of George Barron, who had the year before established a private school for cadets at the Point. It required the stimulus of a second war with the mother country to overcome the deep rooted prejudice of the rural legislators against an institution which they believed would become a nursery of aristocrats, and it was, therefore, not until 1812 that the military academy became a part of the army establishment.—Frank H. Taylor in Four Track News.

ADDITIONAL DEATHS.

Mrs. Laura McMillan.
Mrs. Laura McMillan, aged 35 years, wife of Jerre McMillan, died very suddenly this morning at 9 o'clock from an attack of heart trouble, at her home on Washington street. The funeral arrangements had not been made this afternoon, but the services will be held at the residence, and the interment will be made in one of the local cemeteries. Mrs. McMillan was the daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Davidson, and was born in Madison township. Mrs. Davidson, the mother, is now critically ill at the home of a daughter in Wellsville. She was married 17 years ago to Mr. McMillan, and came to this city a short time later. Mrs. McMillan has been in poor health for several weeks, but was not thought to be in a serious condition. This morning she arose at about 9 o'clock, and a few minutes later was seized with heart failure. Mrs. McMillan was a member of the United Presbyterian church, and Rev. Dr. Taggart will conduct the services. Besides the husband she is survived by two children, Ethel, aged 15, and Ruth, aged 5, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Elizabeth Green, of Illinois; Frank Davidson, also of Illinois; Mrs. Maggie Garry, of Wellsville; James Davidson, of Michigan; George Davidson, of Yellow Creek township, Daniel Davidson, of Illinois and Mrs. Kate Adams, near West Point.

Mrs. Susie Bruhn.

Mrs. Susie Bruhn died yesterday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Edward Green, Third street, after a short illness due to child birth. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Free Methodist church, Avondale street. She was 25 years of age, and was a sister of Mrs. Nettie Hilton, Mrs. John Owens, Thomas, John, Edward, James, Harry and little May Green, all of the city, and W. T. Green, of Wellsville.

Herman Aufderheide.

Herman Aufderheide, a brother of Policeman Henry Aufderheide, died last night at the Southside hospital, Pittsburg, from appendicitis. An operation was performed a few days ago which proved unsuccessful, death resulting a short time later. Officer Aufderheide was present when the operation was performed and remained at the bedside until the end. He came home this morning, but returned to Pittsburg with his family this afternoon to attend the services. The interment will be made in Oakland cemetery, Pittsburg.

Isaac Arb.

Isaac Arb, aged 42, died at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night at the Taylor hospital from typhoid fever, which developed after an illness of several weeks. The body was removed this morning to the Miller undertaking establishment, pending arrangements for the funeral. He was a clay miner, but had not worked for some time. He was in unfortunate circumstances and before his removal to the hospital had been cared for at the home of A. J. Calhoun, in the West End. A wife and several children, from whom he has been separated, survive him.

Saulsbury's Case Critical.

The many friends of ex-Policeman Frank Saulsbury are apprehensive of his condition. His mother and other relatives have been summoned. He was reported sinking this afternoon.

RESTAURANT ROBBED

Burglars Visited the Establishment of
J. E. Webber And Took $50
Worth of Cigars.

Burglars visited the store of J. E. Webber, opposite the park entrance, Sunday morning and about $50 worth of cigars and other stock from the restaurant was taken. The entrance to the store was gained through a window in the rear room from which the pane had been removed.

The work has the appearance of that of amateurs and it is expected that the parties will be located. The authorities are particularly anxious to land these thieves, as it is the first robbery of any magnitude that has occurred in the town since its incorporation.

Curious Hunting Custom.

The Labrador Indians when on a hunt stalk on in advance of the train with their arms, while the women, heavily laden with provisions and means of shelter, drag along slowly after. When the lords and masters begin to think of food time or wish in any way to leave some guide as to their progress for the squaws they thrust an upright spear or stick in the snow and draw in the snow the exact line of the shadow then cast. The women, toiling painfully along, note the spear and the progress of the shadow and know closely the difference of time. They know, too, whether they dare to linger for a few minutes' rest or if they must hastily catch the stick or spear and hurry on.—Chicago News.

West Point's Origin.

The operations of the troops engaged in the war of the Revolution directed attention to the romantic and commanding heights of West Point, and within a few years after the close of the contest, through the influence of surviving officers of the Continental army it pleased President Washington to include in his message to congress (1793) a recommendation for the establishment of a military academy here.

The act creating the academy did not pass until the year 1802, and then only as a means of giving countenance to the work of George Barron, who had the year before established a private school for cadets at the Point. It required the stimulus of a second war with the mother country to overcome the deep rooted prejudice of the rural legislators against an institution which they believed would become a nursery of aristocrats, and it was, therefore, not until 1812 that the military academy became a part of the army establishment.—Frank H. Taylor in Four Track News.

MACHINES GROWING IN POPULARITY IN THIS CITY.

Great Interest Taken in the Coming Show at Cleveland—Hints to Buyers.

Among the local people who will attend the auto show at Cleveland next week is Charles Thomas, who is deeply interested in all first-class automobiles. At this show will be specimens of the finest cars in the country and it is likely that others from the city who have the craze will attend. According to a statement of Mr. Thomas the sight of an automobile on the streets of East Liverpool the coming summer will be as common place as buggies have been in past years.

Local people of means have been negotiating with auto firms in every section of the United States during the winter and those who will likely purchase a car before long are General Manager Louis Healy, of the East Liverpool railway; William Louthan, W. L. and Homer Taylor, Dr. W. A. Hobbs, W. T. Tebbitts, Dr. Elliott, G. W. Meredith and E. M. Knowles. These gentlemen have either placed their orders or are contemplating doing so and it is expected that numerous others will follow suit before long.

H. Homer Knowles, who has had much experience with automobiles gives the following suggestions to those contemplating the purchase of automobiles:

"Some people think that a good looking car is a good automobile, but this is wrong. Any kind of body can be put on a bad engine and the car looks all right until you go out with it. What people want is a good looking car with a good engine to make her go. Most people, when they want a car, write to a lot of makers for catalogues. When they come the first thing that they do is to look at the cuts, then the ones that they like they read. Next comes the price, then an order. This is not the way to buy a car. Reading matter in catalogues is all right, as far as it goes, but you want something more, which most people do not get that live in a small town. This town has about 10 cars—and I look to see about 20 to 25 before long. Let the people who want to buy look and see what these cars have done. Here are a few rules that I would like to see people keep more than they do:

"First—Do not buy an experiment. Buy from a company that has past that stage and are making good cars, up to date.

"Second—See what kind of a country you have around you; if hilly and what kind of roads.

"Third—See what other cars in your town have done; have a ride in them if possible.

"Fourth—Do not think that the good looking body means a good engine.

"Fifth—See what horsepower you want for the hills. Then look for cars of that weight and horse power. Let the body go.

"Sixth—After you have found the cars that will be best to your country then look for one that has done the most, in all kinds of weather and conditions—

"Seventh—Now go and have a ride in one. Make them take you up all kinds of hills, etc.

"Eighth—Then buy. Do not buy unless you have tried one, or nine out of ten will be sorry.

"I will say here that any one who wishes to buy a car should wait for the Cleveland show (February 29 to March 5). Then go with some one that knows something about automobiles."

SALEM NOT IN IT

Dropped From Northeastern Ohio Racing Circuit—Schedule of Races.

At the annual meeting of the Northeastern Ohio racing circuit, held at the Forest City House in Cleveland, Salem was dropped from membership. This may mean no racing at the Salem Driving park next summer, and if there is, few if any of the circuit chasers will be there, as the schedule was made up without an assignment to Salem.

The meeting was well attended and an agreement was reached to hold four day meetings with $400 purses, during the coming season. President R. A. Cobb of Warren and Secretary W. N. Ashbaugh were re-elected for the year, and the following schedule for 21 weeks of racing was fixed:

June 7-10—Rockport.
June 14-17—Valley, Cleveland.
June 21-23—Valley, Cleveland.
June 28-July 1—Wheeling.
July 4-7—Youngstown.
July 12-15—Sandusky.
July 19-22—Mansfield.
July 26-29—Wooster.
Aug. 2-5—Warren.
Aug. 9-12—Rockport.
Aug. 16-19—Valley.
Aug. 23-26—Valley.
Aug. 31—Sept. 2—Warren (Trumbull county fair).

Sept. 5-9—Wheeling (West Virginia state fair).

Sept. 13-16—Youngstown.
Sept. 20-23—Open.
Sept. 27-30—Open.

Oct. 4-7—Akron (Summit county fair).

Oct. 11-14—Rockport.

Oct. 18-21—Valley, Cleveland.

Oct. 25-28—Valley, Cleveland.

The two weeks of September 20 and 27 have been left open, but will be filled later, as there are several tracks bidding for them. Among the bidders are Beaver Falls, Pa., and the Mahoning county fair association which meets at Canfield.

Akron then bids up for the week of the Summit county fair, and then the season is closed with three weeks of racing at Cleveland, making 21 weeks of racing in all.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

About the only difference that the new professional rule would make at various colleges would be to cause the players to point with pride to their contracts with summer base ball clubs.

The Memphis Southern league pennant winners of last year will be a different organization this year. Lew Whistler, the old Detroit player, has shaken out some of the ancient timber.

The official staff of umpires of the American association has finally been announced by President J. Ed Grillo. They are James E. Hassett, William F. Hart, George Bausewine and Frank Pears.

One bill introduced in the New York legislature provides that in counties of 300,000 and less than 600,000 population amateur base ball may be played on Sunday. The measure is meant for Buffalo.

Dummy Hoy may not play ball next season. Surely indications are that he will not play with Los Angeles, as that club has secured Gilbert, formerly of the Little Rock team, for his place in center field.

Garry Herrmann promptly and properly called the American league for attempting to repudiate the peace agreement in the schedule matter. This is an endorsement for Barney Dreyfuss, chairman of the National league's schedule committee.

MENELIK IS GRACIOUS

Consul General Skinner Tells of Reception at Abyssinian Capital.

AMERICANS HIGHLY HONORED

First Detailed Account of Recent Mission Made Public at Washington—Party Had Escort of 3,000 Ethiopians—Many Courtesies Exchanged.

Washington, Feb. 22.—How the United States has come into trade relations with a new region containing 10,000,000 of people is briefly told in the report of Robert P. Skinner, consul general at Marselles, France, on his commercial mission to Abyssinia last November. Mr. Skinner negotiated a treaty which will secure the most favored nation privileges in Ethiopia and will guarantee to American citizens and merchandise immunity from discrimination in rates on all public roads and lines of communication.

In addition Mr. Skinner prevailed upon King Menelik to accept an invitation for his country to participate in the St. Louis exposition. Mr. Skinner says:

"The presence of the mission in Ethiopia has had the effect of turning her attention toward the United States as a probable source of supply for many manufactured articles for which an expanding market is certain to result upon the completion of the railway and as a probable consuming market for such products as may be available for export."

Mr. Skinner gives this picturesque description of his reception of the emperor:

Escorted by 3,000 Black Men.

"The mission set out for the seat of government by an Ethiopian escort of 3,000 men. We were astonished and our appreciation of the picturesque gratified by this first glimpse of Ethiopian troops upon a ceremonial occasion. Arrayed in gorgeous silks and satins, with lion and leopard skin mantles, gold and silver plated bucklers, carrying lances from which floated the national colors, mounted upon spirited horses, they galloped into formation the order of which was an apparent disorder, a scene as indescribable as it was memorable. A band of shaw players heralded our coming with weird music which had not changed since the fall of Jericho. At the palace or Guehi our escort fell back and the mission, always accompanied by marines and blue jackets, proceeded through a series of court yards and after receiving a salute from a company of 200 native artillerymen under the command of a European officer, and a further salute of 21 guns in honor of the United States, we entered the adarach, an audience chamber of cathedral-like proportions and form. The emperor sat upon his throne, surrounded by his more important advisers, representing the administrative departments, the judiciary, the army and the church. Back of the two rows of pillars supporting the roof were massed several thousands of the leading people of the Adis-Ababa, all in holiday regalia. Our reception was cordial but formal."

Menelik Decorates Visitors.

For nine days Mr. Skinner was in conference with the emperor and his chiefs of state. At the farewell audience the emperor received the entire expedition and bestowed decorations upon all the officers of the mission and presented medals to the marines. To Mr. Skinner the emperor gave two young lions and a pair of elephant tusks together with a personal letter of friendship and good will addressed to the president, which he gave as testimonial of his friendship and good will to the United States.

Of the nation's resources Mr. Skinner has this to say: "The empire holds no attractions to the commercial adventurer with limited means. On the other hand enterprises planned with skill and backed with sufficient capital may be carried out with every assurance that property interests will be respected by the government and that promoters of such enterprises will be welcomed with a catholic spirit."

REALM OF SPORTS

NEW AUTOMOBILES WILL BE NUMEROUS

MACHINES GROWING IN POPULARITY IN THIS CITY.

Great Interest Taken in the Coming Show at Cleveland—Hints to Buyers.

Among the local people who will attend the auto show at Cleveland next week is Charles Thomas, who is deeply interested in all first-class automobiles. At this show will be specimens of the finest cars in the country and it is likely that others from the city who have the craze will attend. According to a statement of Mr. Thomas the sight of an automobile on the streets of East Liverpool the coming summer will be as common place as buggies have been in past years.

Local people of means have been negotiating with auto firms in every section of the United States during the winter and those who will likely purchase a car before long are General Manager Louis Healy, of the East Liverpool railway; William Louthan, W. L. and Homer Taylor, Dr. W. A. Hobbs, W. T. Tebbitts, Dr. Elliott, G. W. Meredith and E. M. Knowles. These gentlemen have either placed their orders or are contemplating doing so and it is expected that numerous others will follow suit before long.

H. Homer Knowles, who has had much experience with automobiles gives the following suggestions to those contemplating the purchase of automobiles:

"Some people think that a good looking car is a good automobile, but this is wrong. Any kind of body can be put on a bad engine and the car looks all right until you go out with it. What people want is a good looking car with a good engine to make her go. Most people, when they want a car, write to a lot of makers for catalogues. When they come the first thing that they do is to look at the cuts, then the ones that they like they read. Next comes the price, then an order. This is not the way to buy a car. Reading matter in catalogues is all right, as far as it goes, but you want something more, which most people do not get that live in a small town. This town has about 10 cars—and I look to see about 20 to 25 before long. Let the people who want to buy look and see what these cars have done. Here are a few rules that I would like to see people keep more than they do:

"First—Do not buy an experiment. Buy from a company that has past that stage and are making good cars, up to date.

"Second—See what kind of a country you have around you; if hilly and what kind of roads.

"Third—See what other cars in your town have done; have a ride in them if possible.

"Fourth—Do not think that the good looking body means a good engine.

"Fifth—See what horsepower you want for the hills. Then look for cars of that weight and horse power. Let the body go.

"Sixth—After you have found the cars that will be best to your country then look for one that has done the most, in all kinds of weather and conditions.

ditions—one that will stand up and bring you home under its own power. "Seventh—Now go and have a ride in one. Make them take you up all kinds of hills, etc.

"Eighth—Then buy. Do not buy unless you have tried one, or nine out of ten will be sorry.

"I will say here that any one who wishes to buy a car should wait for the Cleveland show (February 29 to March 5). Then go with some one that knows something about automobiles."

SALEM NOT IN IT

Dropped From Northeastern Ohio Racing Circuit—Schedule of Races.

At the annual meeting of the Northeastern Ohio racing circuit, held at the Forest City House in Cleveland, Salem was dropped from membership. This may mean no racing at the Salem Driving park next summer, and if there is, few if any of the circuit chasers will be there, as the schedule was made up without an assignment to Salem.

The meeting was well attended and an agreement was reached to hold four day meetings with $400 purses, during the coming season. President R. A. Cobb of Warren and Secretary W. N. Ashbaugh were re-elected for the year, and the following schedule for 21 weeks of racing was fixed:

June 7-10—Rockport.
June 14-17—Valley, Cleveland.
June 21-23—Valley, Cleveland.
June 28-July 1—Wheeling.
July 4-7—Youngstown.
July 12-15—Sandusky.
July 19-22—Mansfield.
July 26-28—Wooster.
Aug. 2-5—Warren.
Aug. 9-12—Rockport.
Aug. 16-19—Valley.
Aug. 23-26—Valley.
Aug. 31-Sept. 2—Warren (Trumbull county fair).
Sept. 5-9—Wheeling (West Virginia state fair).
Sept. 13-16—Youngstown.
Sept. 20-23—Open.
Sept. 27-30—Open.
Oct. 4-7—Akron (Summit county fair).
Oct. 11-14—Rockport.
Oct. 18-21—Valley, Cleveland.
Oct. 25-28—Valley, Cleveland.
The two weeks of September 20 and 27 have been left open, but will be filled later, as there are several tracks bidding for them. Among the bidders are Beaver Falls, Pa., and the Mahoning county fair association which meets at Canfield.

Akron then bobs up for the week of the Summit county fair, and then the season is closed with three weeks of racing at Cleveland, making 21 weeks of racing in all.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

About the only difference that the new professional rule would make at various colleges would be to cause the players to point with pride to their contracts with summer base ball clubs.

The Memphis Southern league pennant winners of last year will be a different organization this year. Lew Whistler, the old Detroit player, has shaken out some of the ancient timber.

The official staff of umpires of the American association has finally been announced by President J. Ed Grillo. They are James E. Hassett, William F. Hart, George Bausewine and Frank Pears.

One bill introduced in the New York legislature provides that in counties of 300,000 and less than 600,000 population amateur base ball may be played on Sunday. The measure is meant for Buffalo.

Dummy Hoy may not play ball next season. Surely indications are that he will not play with Los Angeles, as that club has secured Gilbert, formerly of the Little Rock team, for his place in center field.

Garry Herrmann promptly and properly called the American league for attempting to repudiate the peace agreement in the schedule matter. This is an endorsement for Barney Dreyfuss, chairman of the National league's schedule committee.

MENELIK IS GRACIOUS

Consul General Skinner Tells of Reception at Abyssinian Capital.

AMERICANS HIGHLY HONORED

First Detailed Account of Recent Mission Made Public at Washington—Party Had Escort of 3,000 Ethiopians—Many Courtesies Exchanged.

Washington, Feb. 22.—How the United States has come into trade relations with a new region containing 10,000,000 of people is briefly told in the report of Robert P. Skinner, consul general at Marseilles, France, on his commercial mission to Abyssinia last November. Mr. Skinner negotiated a treaty which will secure the most favored nation privileges in Ethiopia and will guarantee to American citizens and merchandise immunity from discrimination in rates on all public roads and lines of communication.

In addition Mr. Skinner prevailed upon King Menelik to accept an invitation for his country to participate in the St. Louis exposition. Mr. Skinner says:

"The presence of the mission in Ethiopia has had the effect of turning her attention toward the United States as a probable source of supply for many manufactured articles for which an expanding market is certain to result upon the completion of the railway and as a probable consuming market for such products as may be available for export."

Mr. Skinner gives this picturesque description of his reception of the emperor:

Escorted by 3,000 Black Men.

"The mission set out for the seat of government by an Ethiopian escort of 3,000 men. We were astonished and our appreciation of the picturesque gratified by this first glimpse of Ethiopian troops upon a ceremonial occasion. Arrayed in gorgeous silks and satins, with lion and leopard skin mantles, gold and silver plated bucklers, carrying lances from which floated the national colors, mounted upon spirited horses, they galloped into formation the order of which was an apparent disorder, a scene as indescribable as it was memorable. A band of shaw players heralded our coming with weird music which has not changed since the fall of Jericho. "At the palace or Ghehi our escort fell back and the mission, always accompanied by marines and blue jackets, proceeded through a series of court yards and after receiving a salute from a company of 200 native artillerymen under the command of a European officer, and a further salute of 21 guns in honor of the United States, we entered the adarach, an audience chamber of cathedral-like proportions and form. The emperor sat upon his throne, surrounded by his more important advisers, representing the administrative departments, the judiciary, the army and the church. Back of the two rows of pillars supporting the roof were massed several thousands of the leading people of the Adis-Ababa, all in holiday regalia. Our reception was cordial but formal."

Menelik Decorates Visitors.

For nine days Mr. Skinner was in conference with the emperor and his chiefs of state. At the farewell audience the emperor received the entire expedition and bestowed decorations upon all the officers of the mission and presented medals to the marines. To Mr. Skinner the emperor gave two young lions and a pair of elephant tusks together with a personal letter of friendship and good will addressed to the president, which he gave as testimonial of his friendship and good will to the United States.

Of the nation's resources Mr. Skinner has this to say: "The empire holds no attractions to the commercial adventurer with limited means. On the other hand enterprises planned with skill and backed with sufficient capital may be carried out with every assurance that property interests will be respected by the government and that promoters of such enterprises will be welcomed with a catholic spirit."

On the Road to Concord

A Story of Washington
By
EDGAR WELTON COOLEY

THE road that led to Concord was covered with a thin coating of snow, through which a woman walked slowly with bowed head. The woman was young, not over eighteen, but her features were drawn with lines of sorrow. Below the fringe of her shawl showed a basket woven of coarse hewn hickory strips, from which came the savory fragrance of tea cakes and brown bread and wild grape butter.

"He is to die," she kept repeating to herself. "He is to die—to die as a coward! Oh, Paul, Paul, my dear one, my beloved!"

Presently, in turning a bend of the road, the girl paused suddenly and drew back half startled, for a man was sitting upon a log by the roadside. He wore the uniform of an officer in the Continental army.

He was not aware of her presence, for he did not turn his head nor even raise his eyes, but sat motionless, wrapped in meditations, his greatcoat thrown back upon his shoulders.

And upon his forceful, resolute features the girl saw such deep lines of anguish and pity and compassion, that she shivered.

As her shadow swept across his line of vision the officer leaped to his feet and placed his hand upon his sword. Then he beheld the slim young woman standing beside him, her large dark eyes, all shining wet with tears, searching his face anxiously, and he lifted his hat from his powdered wig and bowed courteously.

"You are ill, sir?" she asked. "You are suffering?"

"No, my child," he replied, a deep tenderness in his voice. "It is not I who suffers; it is my country—my poor, poor country!"

"Our country," the woman corrected him. "Our country. May God bless our country!"

For several moments the man, with both hands clasping his hat in front of him, the woman with her shawl thrown back upon her shoulders and a wealth of chestnut hair falling about her neck, stood silently with bowed heads.

"General Washington—we all love him," she said. "We who because of our sex must remain at home and in secret cry our hearts out over our country's woes—we have the faith in God and the confidence in General Washington to believe that our small but brave army will drive the enemy from our shores, sir. And at candlelight, beside our beds, we bend our knees and ask the blessing of our Father upon General Washington and the Continental army."

The officer raised his face to that of the woman. In his weary, melancholy eyes a great and newborn peace seemed to shine.

"Oh, the women," he said, "the mothers and daughters and sisters and sweethearts—the dear, good women, the grand, noble, brave, loyal women!"

"Do you know General Washington, sir?" she asked eagerly, bending slightly forward and laying her hand lightly upon his arm. The other hesitated.

"Yes, my child," he replied at length. "I know him quite as well as any one, I venture to say."

"Then—then—" She choked and bowed her head, and the tears dropped silently.

The officer removed a glove and laid a hand tenderly upon her hair.

"My child," he said kindly, "what great sorrow has this war brought you?"

"Oh, sir," she sobbed pitifully, "he is to die—to die as a coward. But it is a lie, a mighty falsehood. No man is a coward, sir, who loves his mother as I do."

"He?" the officer replied. "Who, my daughter?"

"Paul," she cried. "Paul Rogers! He was a soldier, sir. He fired his first shot for his country along this very road—here and at Lexington. He helped to drive the British murderers back to Boston and has not laid down his rifle since by day or night."

She paused a moment to control her emotion, and then she continued:

"But he came home to see his mother—his mother who is dying in the cottage where you see the light down there in the valley. And the soldiers came, sir, and took him away, and he is—and he is to die as a deserter."

"And you?" he asked.

"I was to have been his wife when the war is over," she answered meekly.

The officer's face grew grave, but he did not reply. Drawing his greatcoat more closely about him, for the night wind was rising and the air was growing chilly, he took the basket from the girl's arm.

"Shall we not go down to the cottage?" he said. "I should like to see this boy's mother."

The girl made no response, but, again placing the shawl over her head, she walked beside him over the untrodden snow. At the door she paused.

"She does not know," she whispered. The soldier nodded his head, and they passed into a room where an aged woman lay in the dim light of a tallow dip.

When she saw the officer standing beside the bed the sick one gave a sudden sob.

"Paul, Paul!" she cried.

"Nay, my good woman," the soldier replied, taking one of her thin, trembling hands in both of his. "I am not Paul, but I am Paul's friend."

The woman smiled proudly.

"Aye, Paul is a brave boy," she said, "a brave boy and a good and dutiful son. It is because there are so many boys in the army, sir, who are good and true and brave, like Paul, that God will bless us and General Washington will be able to lead our forces to victory."

Courteously, yet tenderly, the officer raised the aged woman's emaciated hand to his lips and kissed it.

"It is the brave boys in the field," he said—"the brave boys whose patriotism sustains them even though they have not food or clothing to keep them warm—and the loyal, Christian, self-denying women at home who will win the victory that must surely come. To them more than to General Washington should be the honor and the glory."

"Nay, nay," the woman made haste to answer. "Upon General Washington lies the entire crushing responsibility of the success of the conflict. To him the country looks for guidance in this hour of darkness. Hunger and cold—what are they, sir, compared to the anguish that must at times be pressed the sufferer's fingers to his lips.

Washington's? I think we should all be glad that we have sons to give to our country in this time of need."

"True," the other said, "but what could Washington accomplish without the assistance, the devotion, the sacrifices, of the volunteer soldiers and the prayers of the loyal, God-fearing women at home?"

Again he pressed the sufferer's fingers to his lips and then abruptly turned and walked to the door. The younger woman followed him beyond the threshold.

"Do you think, sir," she faltered, "if I should see General Washington—that—that?"

"My child," he said, not unkindly, "General Washington is about to start upon a long journey. All night long he will be on the march, and by daybreak he will be many, many miles from here."

For a brief instant he paused, and then, with stately courtesy, he uncovered his head and, bowing low, kissed the tips of the girl's fingers, then released her hand and strode away in the darkness.

Scarcely an hour had passed when a familiar step was heard upon the path leading to the door of the cottage, and Paul Rogers burst into the room.

With a glad cry the girl threw herself into his arms. He kissed her fondly and pressed a letter into her hand, then knelt beside the bed and took his mother's head in his arms and petted her cheeks while she laughed feebly.

Nervously breaking the seal of the letter, the girl read the following, written in a heavy scrawl:

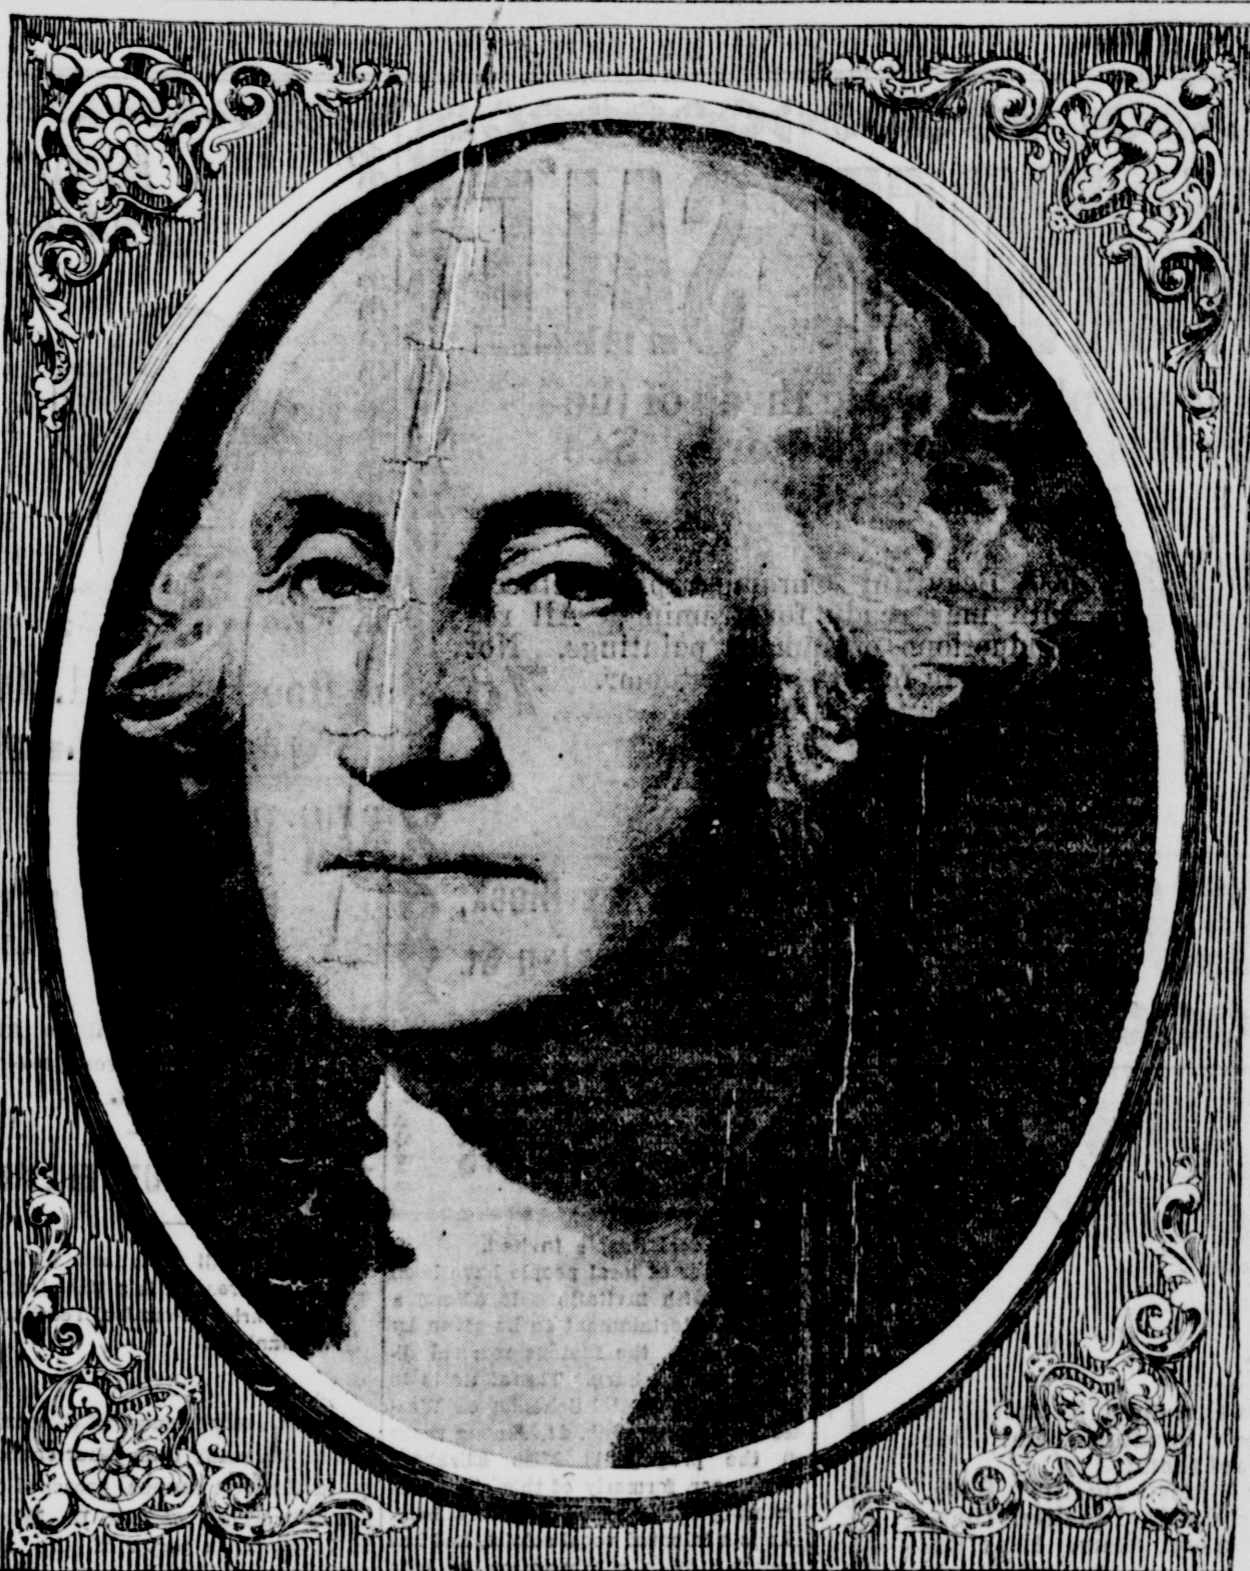

My Dear Child—One who in the hour of great sorrow has been strengthened and encouraged by the knowledge of your love and your patriotism returns to you, by virtue of his pardon, him who is dear to you as your affianced and dear to me as a brave soldier, for the son of such a mother could never be a coward.

G. WASHINGTON.

For several moments the girl stood motionless in the dim light of the tallow dip. Then a tear dropped upon the paper, and her lips moved.

"God bless General Washington!" she said reverently.

His Sympathy For George

(As Expressed by a Boarder)

By JOE LINCOLN

Copyright, 1904, by Joe Lincoln
GEORGE WASHINGTON, great Father George,

I've read the story dire
Of how you froze at Valley Forge
With little warmth or fire.
My lodgings are not fine or grand—
They're four flights up, you see—
I'm owing something for them, and
I sympathize with thee.

I know just how you felt, great man:
There'll be no heat for me.
I'll freeze until I pay my bill—
I sympathize with thee.

HE PRESSED THE SUFFERER'S FINGERS TO HIS LIPS.

Washington's? I think we should all be glad that we have sons to give to our country in this time of need."

"True," the other said, "but what could Washington accomplish without the assistance, the devotion, the sacrifices, of the volunteer soldiers and the prayers of the loyal, God-fearing women at home?"

"God bless General Washington!" she said reverently.

Down where the parlor organ groans
They're jeering now at me;
And She—She's holding hands with Jones—
I sympathize with thee.

IT'S "NECK" FOR ME.

Oh, hard is misplaced trust, great sire!
I owe her ma a "V."
And so She smirks at cheap young clerks—
I sympathize with thee.

YES, Father George, I'm moping here,
With but your "Life" to read,
While down below they laugh and sneer
Nor give me little heed.

MY GRIP IS PACKED.

But let them laugh; my grip is packed.
Sometimes, when things looked blue,
You slyly beat a night retreat—
I sympathize with you.

Stuart's Portraits Of Washington

The "Stuart head" of Washington in the Boston Athenaeum is regarded as the standard portrait of the great patriot. From it nearly a hundred copies were made by Gilbert Stuart himself, while innumerable replicas of it, some of which pass now as Stuarts, have been painted by lesser artists. It is also the source of the most popular engravings of Washington and has been officially indorsed by the United States government, which uses it on the two-cent stamp.

This portrait was Stuart's third attempt to reproduce the features of his illustrious patron. The first portrait was painted in 1795. Stuart was so dissatisfied with it that he ultimately destroyed it, though it was considered by others so excellent a likeness that Lord Lansdowne commissioned Stuart to paint him a full length portrait of Washington, which he took to England. Shortly after this Washington himself asked Stuart to paint his portrait as well as that of Mrs. Washington. Stuart, driven by the press of visitors from his home in Philadelphia to a country retreat in Germantown, transformed his barn into a painting room, and it was there that Washington sat for the so-called Athenaeum portrait. Stuart, with Washington's consent, retained the original of this picture and the Martha Washington head, making copies for Mount Vernon, the whereabouts of which are not now known.

It was in 1794 that Mr. Stuart first met General Washington, and from that time he devoted his brush almost entirely to his illustrious patron. The number of portraits of Washington which he made is not known. He left a list of thirty-nine portraits which he had been commissioned to paint for admirers of the president at home and abroad, but he also painted five full length Washingtons and twenty others of different sizes, the proceeds of the sale of which he invested in an estate in Pennsylvania.

The originals of Washington and Mrs. Washington were sold after the artist's death to an association of gentlemen, who presented them to the Boston Athenaeum in 1823. They paid Stuart's widow $1,500 for them.

Gilbert Charles Stuart, the most eminent of America's portrait painters and the rival of the greatest English artists of his day, was born in Narragansett, R. I., in 1755, and died in Boston in 1828. He received his first instruction from a Scotch artist named Alexander, who took him to Edinburgh when he was about eighteen. He subsequently studied under Benjamin West, in whose family he lived for some time. In 1781 he set up as a portrait painter in London and achieved immediate fame. He returned to America in 1793.

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath on, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is.

It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and a reliable remedy for Catarrh in all stages. Write if in need of medical advice; this will cost you nothing.

Bluejackets and Marines Land and Chase Them Inland—Only One Casualty Among Our Forces—Landing Party Returns on Board Ships.

Paris, Feb. 22.—A dispatch from San Domingo says that the United States cruiser and the training ship Hartford have bombarded Pajarita, which is occupied by the insurgents.

Washington, Feb. 22.—A belated dispatch from Captain Miller of the Columbia bears confirmation of the dispatch regarding the bombardment of the insurgents by the war vessels from a position near the capital city, the landing of marines and bluejackets to punish the revolutionists and their subsequent re-embarkation.

The affair occurred at Pajarita. The insurgents fired on a United States merchant vessel, which was lying in the river. The shots fell so dangerously near the war vessels that the acts of the insurgents were construed as an attack. Fire was opened on the revolutionists. This was followed by the debarkation of 400 marines and bluejackets from the Columbia and the Newark. They dislodged the insurgents and chased them into the country. After accomplishing this the marines and bluejackets took again to their boats and returned to their ships. One man, a bugler named Painter, was seriously wounded by the accidental explosion of his firing piece. There were no other casualties.

On the Road to Concord

A Story of Washington
By
EDGAR WELTON COOLEY

THE road that led to Concord was covered with a thin coating of snow, through which a woman walked slowly with bowed head. The woman was young, not over eighteen, but her features were drawn with lines of sorrow. Below the fringe of her shawl showed a basket woven of coarse brown hickory strips, from which came the savory fragrance of tea cakes and brown bread and wild grape butter.

"He is to die," she kept repeating to herself. "He is to die—to die as a coward! Oh, Paul, Paul, my dear one, my beloved!" Presently, in turning a bend of the road, the girl paused suddenly and drew back half startled, for a man was sitting upon a log by the roadside. He wore the uniform of an officer in the Continental army.

He was not aware of her presence, for he did not turn his head nor even raise his eyes, but sat motionless, wrapped in meditations, his greatcoat thrown back upon his shoulders.

And upon his forceful, resolute features the girl saw such deep lines of sorrow, such indelible marks of anguish and pity and compassion, that she shivered.

As her shadow swept across his line of vision the officer leaped to his feet and placed his hand upon his sword. Then he beheld the slim young woman standing beside him, her large dark eyes, all shining wet with tears, searching his face anxiously, and he lifted his hat from his powdered wig and bowed courteously.

"You are ill, sir?" she asked. "You are suffering?"

"No, my child," he replied, a deep tenderness in his voice. "It is not I who suffer; it is my country—my poor, poor country!"

"Our country," the woman corrected him. "Our country. May God bless our country!"

For several moments the man, with both hands clasping his hat in front of him, the woman with her shawl thrown back upon her shoulders and a wealth of chestnut hair falling about her neck, stood silently with bowed heads.

"General Washington—we all love him," she said. "We who because of our sex must remain at home and in secret cry our hearts out over our country's woes—we have the faith in God and the confidence in General Washington to believe that our small but brave army will drive the enemy from our shores, sir. And at candlelight, beside our beds, we bend our knees and ask the blessing of our Father upon General Washington and the Continental army."

The officer raised his face to that of the woman. In his weary, melancholy eyes a great and newborn peace seemed to shine.

"Oh, the women," he said, "the mothers and daughters and sisters and sweethearts—the dear, good women, the grand, noble, brave, loyal women!"

"Do you know General Washington, sir?" she asked eagerly, bending slightly forward and laying her hand lightly upon his arm. The other hesitated.

"Yes, my child," he replied at length. "I know him quite as well as any one, I venture to say."

"Then—then—" She choked and bowed her head, and the tears dropped silently.

The officer removed a glove and laid a hand tenderly upon her hair.

She stepped forward quickly. "My child," he said kindly, "what great sorrow has this war brought you?"

"Oh, sir," she sobbed pitifully, "he is to die—to die as a coward. But it is a lie, a mighty falsehood. No man is a coward, sir, who loves his mother as I do."

"He?" the officer replied. "Who, my daughter?"

"Paul," she cried. "Paul Rogers! He was a soldier, sir. He fired his first shot for his country along this very road—here and at Lexington. He helped to drive the British murderers back to Boston and has not laid down his rifle since by day or night."

She paused a moment to control her emotion, and then she continued: "But he came home to see his mother—his mother who is dying in the cottage where you see the light down there in the valley. And the soldiers came, sir, and took him away, and he is—and he is to die as a deserter."

"And you?" he asked.

"I was to have been his wife when the war is over," she answered meekly.

The officer's face grew grave, but he did not reply. Drawing his greatcoat more closely about him, for the night wind was rising and the air was growing chilly, he took the basket from the girl's arm.

"Shall we not go down to the cottage?" he said. "I should like to see this boy's mother."

The girl made no response, but, again placing the shawl over her head, she walked beside him over the untrodden snow. At the door she paused.

"She does not know," she whispered. The soldier nodded his head, and they passed into a room where an aged woman lay in the dim light of a tallow dip.

When she saw the officer standing beside the bed the sick one gave a sudden sob.

"Paul, Paul!" she cried.

"Nay, my good woman," the soldier replied, taking one of her thin, trembling hands in both of his. "I am not Paul, but I am Paul's friend."

The woman smiled proudly.

"Aye, Paul is a brave boy," she said, "a brave boy and a good and dutiful son. It is because there are so many boys in the army, sir, who are good and true and brave, like Paul, that God will bless us and General Washington will be able to lead our forces to victory."

Courteously, yet tenderly, the officer raised the aged woman's emaciated hand to his lips and kissed it.

"It is the brave boys in the field," he said—"the brave boys whose patriotism sustains them even though they have not food or clothing to keep them warm—and the loyal, Christian, self-denying women at home who will win the victory that must surely come. To them more than to General Washington should be the honor and the glory."

"Nay, nay," the woman made haste to answer. "Upon General Washington lies the entire crushing responsibility of the success of the conflict. To him the country looks for guidance in this hour of darkness. Hunger and cold—what are they, sir, compared to the anguish that must at times be of anguish and pity and compassion, that she shivered.

As her shadow swept across his line of vision the officer leaped to his feet and placed his hand upon his sword. Then he beheld the slim young woman standing beside him, her large dark eyes, all shining wet with tears, searching his face anxiously, and he lifted his hat from his powdered wig and bowed courteously.

The officer's face grew grave, but he did not reply. Drawing his greatcoat more closely about him, for the night wind was rising and the air was growing chilly, he took the basket from the girl's arm.

"Shall we not go down to the cottage?" he said. "I should like to see this boy's mother."

The girl made no response, but, again placing the shawl over her head, she walked beside him over the untrodden snow. At the door she paused.

"She does not know," she whispered. The soldier nodded his head, and they passed into a room where an aged woman lay in the dim light of a tallow dip.

When she saw the officer standing beside the bed the sick one gave a sudden sob.

"Paul, Paul!" she cried.

"Nay, my good woman," the soldier replied, taking one of her thin, trembling hands in both of his. "I am not Paul, but I am Paul's friend."

The woman smiled proudly.

"Aye, Paul is a brave boy," she said, "a brave boy and a good and dutiful son. It is because there are so many boys in the army, sir, who are good and true and brave, like Paul, that God will bless us and General Washington will be able to lead our forces to victory."

Courteously, yet tenderly, the officer raised the aged woman's emaciated hand to his lips and kissed it.

"It is the brave boys in the field," he said—"the brave boys whose patriotism sustains them even though they have not food or clothing to keep them warm—and the loyal, Christian, self-denying women at home who will win the victory that must surely come. To them more than to General Washington should be the honor and the glory."

"Nay, nay," the woman made haste to answer. "Upon General Washington lies the entire crushing responsibility of the success of the conflict. To him the country looks for guidance in this hour of darkness. Hunger and cold—what are they, sir, compared to the anguish that must at times be of anguish and pity and compassion, that she shivered.

As her shadow swept across his line of vision the officer leaped to his feet and placed his hand upon his sword. Then he beheld the slim young woman standing beside him, her large dark eyes, all shining wet with tears, searching his face anxiously, and he lifted his hat from his powdered wig and bowed courteously.

"You are ill, sir?" she asked. "You are suffering?"

"No, my child," he replied, a deep tenderness in his voice. "It is not I who suffer; it is my country—my poor, poor country!"

"Our country," the woman corrected him. "Our country. May God bless our country!"

For several moments the man, with both hands clasping his hat in front of him, the woman with her shawl thrown back upon her shoulders and a wealth of chestnut hair falling about her neck, stood silently with bowed heads.

"General Washington—we all love him," she said. "We who because of our sex must remain at home and in secret cry our hearts out over our country's woes—we have the faith in God and the confidence in General Washington to believe that our small but brave army will drive the enemy from our shores, sir. And at candlelight, beside our beds, we bend our knees and ask the blessing of our Father upon General Washington and the Continental army."

The officer raised his face to that of the woman. In his weary, melancholy eyes a great and newborn peace seemed to shine.

"Oh, the women," he said, "the mothers and daughters and sisters and sweethearts—the dear, good women, the grand, noble, brave, loyal women!"

"Do you know General Washington, sir?" she asked eagerly, bending slightly forward and laying her hand lightly upon his arm. The other hesitated.

"Yes, my child," he replied at length. "I know him quite as well as any one, I venture to say."

"Then—then—" She choked and bowed her head, and the tears dropped silently.

The officer removed a glove and laid a hand tenderly upon her hair.

She stepped forward quickly. "My child," he said kindly, "what great sorrow has this war brought you?"

"Oh, sir," she sobbed pitifully, "he is to die—to die as a coward. But it is a lie, a mighty falsehood. No man is a coward, sir, who loves his mother as I do."

"He?" the officer replied. "Who, my daughter?"

"Paul," she cried. "Paul Rogers! He was a soldier, sir. He fired his first shot for his country along this very road—here and at Lexington. He helped to drive the British murderers back to Boston and has not laid down his rifle since by day or night."

She paused a moment to control her emotion, and then she continued: "But he came home to see his mother—his mother who is dying in the cottage where you see the light down there in the valley. And the soldiers came, sir, and took him away, and he is—and he is to die as a deserter."

"And you?" he asked.

"I was to have been his wife when the war is over," she answered meekly.

The officer's face grew grave, but he did not reply. Drawing his greatcoat more closely about him, for the night wind was rising and the air was growing chilly, he took the basket from the girl's arm.

"Shall we not go down to the cottage?" he said. "I should like to see this boy's mother."

CHURCH TO CONSIDER MAKING A PURCHASE

St. John's Lutheran Congregation Will Meet to Act Upon the Matter.

A special meeting of the members of the congregation of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church will be held tomorrow evening. The meeting will be for the purpose of taking some definite action in regard to the purchase of the lot immediately adjoining the church building on Third street.

This property fronts 30 feet on Third street and extends through to the alley. The property is owned by William Davidson of Railroad street and the influential members of the congregation are desirous of securing it so that if in the future it is necessary to make additions to the church it can be done without having to look after the ground.

Some time ago the council of St. John's church secured an option on the Davidson property, which was allowed to lapse, but it is now considered a good move that the property be secured. It is expected that the owner of the property will put the lowest price possible on the land, as it is being sought for the church.

NEW PASTOR PREACHED HERE

Dr. Edward M. McMillin Ably Filled the First Presbyterian Pulpit.

TO LOVE YOUR ENEMIES

The Duty of All Christians, Although the Requirement is a Most Difficult One—Christ a Practical Teacher for All Mankind.

Almost every member of the congregation and many from other churches heard the first sermon, preached yesterday morning, of Rev. Dr. Edward M. McMillin, as pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. McMillin arrived in the city Saturday afternoon from Adrian, Mich., the charge he is leaving to accept his call here, his departure coming during a period of unusual trouble and affliction for his late congregation. Death has come to several homes there, making his departure quite a trial.

In his sermon yesterday the minister confirmed the very favorable opinion made of him by the congregation when he preached in the church some weeks ago, and the members are happy in the thought that the pulpit, so long vacant, will be most ably filled. His sermon was the earnest effort of an eloquent and forcible man, and was enjoyed to the utmost by the congregation.

The minister chose for his subject the words of Matthew 5:44, "Love Your Enemies." It is easy to love the lovely, hard to love the unlovely, but much more difficult to love your enemies, thinks the minister. The text has been regarded as a most impossible modification of it has been sought. The revised version of the word has been sought, but the words are there, Love your enemies. Luke's gospel contains the commandment, and Paul has written, "Bless them that persecute you, if thine enemy hunger, feed him." Christ changed the old scriptural admonition of an eye for an eye, and we are to accept and believe Him.

Christ was a practical teacher, and his influence was never greater than now. From any other lips the words of the text might be questioned, but Christ is the world's teacher, and today the world is bowing to him as its greatest teacher. So impossible does the text seem that we are inclined to attempt to disregard it, but we must obey.

The measure of a character commences where common standards stop. Had Christ lived an average life the world would now be lost in sin. We should seek to conform to the highest and greatest standards, and it is better to fail in that aim than to seek one lower, as we will be measured by the standard of Christ's life.

SALVATION ARMY'S BIG CELEBRATION

Close of the Anniversary Services Marks Red Letter Day for the Corps.

The services at the Salvation Army barracks last night marked the close of one of the greatest weeks in the history of the organization in this city. During the week there were 50 conversions and the greatest interest was manifested in the meetings, the hall being crowded at every service. The week was especially set apart for the observance of the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of the army here, and on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights Colonel Holz, of Cleveland, and his staff conducted the meetings.

Colonel Holz, who is one of the high officials of the army, expressed himself as highly pleased with the work here under the direction of Adjutant and Mrs. Snider. Colonel Holz is provincial commander of a large district that includes western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana and all the states south to the gulf. As a result of the meetings during the past two weeks the East Liverpool army now ranks with any in the district, not excepting those in the great cities. Adjutant Snider is a member of his staff, but has been so successful here that he will remain possible a year or more longer.

The visit of Colonel Holz was greatly appreciated by the members here, who have for him the very highest regard. His presence is always inspiring and with his help great good was accomplished. At the meeting Saturday night there was a number of old members of the army in attendance and the service was in the nature of a camp fire and reunion.

A new brass band of 18 pieces has been organized among the members of the army, but as some of the players are not experienced musicians considerable practice will be necessary before it appears in public.

SPECIAL SERVICES

At the First M. P. Church Have Been Successful and Will Be Continued.

Older scholars of the First Methodist Protestant Sunday school will compose a large chorus which will preside at the special services which will be held in the lecture room of the church this week. No service will be held Saturday evening. The special meetings at this church last week were very successful. Dr. David Jones will officiate at all the meetings this week.

A short revival service was held following the Sunday school session at this church yesterday, and several conversions resulted. It is thought that a number of the scholars will soon become members of the church, as this is the object of the special week night services.

The Lenten Season.

Rev. Edwin Weary at St. Stephen's church preached yesterday on the proper observance of Lent, showing by scripture that the season is the proper time for repentance and communion with God. At St. Aloysius' church Lenten services will be held each Wednesday and Friday evening.

NEW PASTOR PREACHED HERE

Dr. Edward M. McMillan Abla
Filled the First Presbyterian Pulpit.

TO LOVE YOUR ENEMIES

The Duty of All Christians, Although the Requirement is a Most Difficult
One—Christ a Practical Teacher for All Mankind.

Almost every member of the congregation and many from other churches heard the first sermon, preached yesterday morning, of Rev. Dr. Edward M. McMillan, as pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. McMillan arrived in the city Saturday afternoon from Adrian, Mich., the charge he is leaving to accept his call here, his departure coming during a period of unusual trouble and affliction for his late congregation. Death has come to several homes there, making his departure quite a trial.

In his sermon yesterday the minister confirmed the very favorable opinion made of him by the congregation when he preached in the church some weeks ago, and the members are happy in the thought that the pulpit, so long vacant, will be most ably filled. His sermon was the earnest effort of an eloquent and forcible man, and was enjoyed to the utmost by the congregation.

The minister chose for his subject the words of Matthew 5:44, "Love Your Enemies." It is easy to love the lovely, hard to love the unlovely, but much more difficult to love your enemies, thinks the minister. The text has been regarded as a most impossible commandment, and some scriptural modification of it has been sought. The revised version of the word has been sought, but the words are there, Love your enemies. Luke's gospel contains the commandment, and Paul has written, "Bless them that persecute you, if thine enemy hunger, feed him." Christ changed the old scriptural admonition of an eye for an eye, and we are to accept and believe Him.

Christ was a practical teacher, and his influence was never greater than now. From any other lips the words of the text might be questioned, but Christ is the world's teacher, and to-day the world is bowing to him as its greatest teacher. So impossible does the text seem that we are inclined to attempt to disregard it, but we must obey.

The measure of a character commences where common standards stop. Had Christ lived an average life the world would now be lost in sin. We should seek to conform to the highest and greatest standards, and it is better to fail in that aim than to seek one lower, as we will be measured by the standard of Christ's life.

SALVATION ARMY'S BIG CELEBRATION

Close of the Anniversary Services
Marks Red Letter Day for the Corps.

The services at the Salvation Army barracks last night marked the close of one of the greatest weeks in the history of the organization in this city. During the week there were 50 conversions and the greatest interest was manifested in the meetings, the hall being crowded at every service. The week was especially set apart for the observance of the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of the army here, and on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights Colonel Holz, of Cleveland, and his staff conducted the meetings.

Colonel Holz, who is one of the high officials of the army, expressed himself as highly pleased with the work here under the direction of Adjutant and Mrs. Snider. Colonel Holz is provincial commander of a large district that includes western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana and all the states south to the gulf. As a result of the meetings during the past two weeks with any in the district, not excepting those in the great cities. Adjutant Snider is a member of his staff, but has been so successful here that he will remain possible a year or more longer. The visit of Colonel Holz was greatly appreciated by the members here, who have for him the very highest regard. His presence is always inspiring and with his help great good was accomplished. At the meeting Saturday night there was a number of old members of the army in attendance and the service was in the nature of a camp fire and reunion. A new brass band of 18 pieces has been organized among the members of the army, but as some of the players are not experienced musicians considerable practice will be necessary before it appears in public.

SPECIAL SERVICES

At the First M. P. Church Have Been Successful and Will Be Continued.

Older scholars of the First Methodist Protestant Sunday school will compose a large chorus which will preside at the special services which will be held in the lecture room of the church this week. No service will be held Saturday evening. The special meetings at this church last week were very successful. Dr. David Jones will officiate at all the meetings this week.

A short revival service was held following the Sunday school session at this church yesterday, and several conversions resulted. It is thought that a number of the scholars will soon become members of the church, as this is the object of the special week night services.

The Lenten Season.

Rev. Edwin Weary at St. Stephen's church preached yesterday on the proper observance of Lent, showing by scripture that the season is the proper time for repentance and communion with God. At St. Aloysius' church Lenten services will be held each Wednesday and Friday evening.

Tasting Pleasure.

There are some pleasures that must be tasted to be understood. You can't imagine them! But once try them and you want them! One such pleasure is the "Queen Quality" Shoe. You detect instantly a certain air of quality. There is nothing commonplace about them. It is unmistakably an aristocratic shoe, made of soft, pliant, extra-high-grade leather. Every part of it is flexible, so that the foot is not cramped; the step is easy—the tread elastic—the movement graceful. Yet all this means nothing to you unless you try it. We can't describe it; you must test it.
